HEAD OF STATE

TALKS TO FARMERS200 FARMERS AND BUSINESS
MEN ATTEND COUNTY FARM
BUREAUFARMERS, SAYS MR. REED, MUST ORGANIZE TO MEET OTHER
ORGANIZED GROUPS

The Crow Wing County Farm Bureau held a meeting today at 1:30 o'clock at the court house. There was a large attendance, there being about 200 farmers and business men present.

The principal speaker of the day was J. F. Reed, president of the Minnesota Farm Bureau. Mr. Reed lives on a farm in Lac Qui Parle county, in the western part of the state, so he speaks from actual experience.

Makes Forceful Address

His topic was "The Necessity and Value of Organization." He believes that agriculture in an unorganized way cannot attain a parity or an equality with other groups, business and professional, in American life, who are so closely and fully organized. There were two things he emphasized in his talk and they were: That with the groups having attained their present position through the enactment of law, either the same principle must be applied to agriculture, or the laws enacted for the benefit of other groups, industrial, financial, transportation and labor, must be taken away from them. To do that would disorganize the whole business fabric of America.

Mr. Reed said in part: "Farmers organize in order to meet other organized groups. It is very evident to everyone, except the newspapers, that the agricultural problem is not solved and won't be until agriculture by law obtains the same recognition that other groups have obtained by law. The condition of agriculture in the Middle West where agriculture is the principal business is in no better economic condition than it was last year, but the general trend of agriculture is towards the betterment of conditions. While there has been much impracticable advice given to agriculture by those whose position depended upon the success of agriculture, one of the most hopeful signs, it appears to me now is the sincere, intensive interest on the part of all business organizations to help agriculture to succeed.

The Position of the Railroads

"Railroads see that they cannot succeed in hauling freight from the farms to market and hauling empty cars back to the country, the thing they have been doing too much during the past five years. When the products of agriculture in the course of exchange will not bring the farmer the things he requires for his home and equipment and he is in a position to not buy these necessities, they will not be carried from the industrial centers where they are produced to the farms. At the present moment, the railroads in the western territory are asking for an increase in freight rates, basing their demand largely upon the assumption that agriculture can stand a larger freight rate on its products. The railroads in Minnesota and the northwest are entirely more prosperous than agriculture that they serve. This can be readily shown and will be at the hearing before the Interstate Commerce Commission beginning on November 30th which is to be held in Minneapolis.

"Financial interests see now, as they never have before, the necessity of a prosperous agriculture in order to succeed. During the past 30 days fifty banks were closed in South Dakota because of the present condition of agriculture. When transportation, finance, and industry sees, as they do today, probably better than ever before, that to attain prosperity, the basic industry of agriculture upon which they all depend must be prosperous, every possible effort is being made by these groups to see that agriculture, the largest group in American life, must be prosperous.

Essential for Farmers to Organize
It is essential for farmers to organize—not to attain an advantage, but to meet all other groups in our industrial life that are now organized. There are many things that will tend to help the present agricultural situation, but the one thing that agriculture must have in order to cope with other groups is an equality before the law. Some means must be attained by law to handle the exportable surplus of American farms that it will not entirely govern the price of the product going into domestic consumption. Brazil has done this for their coffee growers, the British colonies have done this for their producers of rubber, and some way must be developed by

NEW YORK
GREET'S PRESIDENT
VERY CORDIALLYCOOLIDGE MAKES PLEA FOR CO-OPERATION OF LEGITIMATE
BUSINESS AND GOV'T.ADDRESSES 1000 BUSINESS LEAD-ERS AT N. Y. STATE CHAM-BER OF COMMERCE

New York, Nov. 20.—(UP)—President Coolidge's plea for co-operation between the legitimate business and government, each "sovereign in its own sphere" brought him the most enthusiastic reception New York has yet accorded him.

Speaking last night before more than 1,000 business leaders at the dinner of the New York State Chamber of Commerce at the Waldorf-Astoria, the president said that American finance, since the war, has marked a new epoch in international relations. He added that this country could perform no greater service to concord and peace than by entering the world court.

Mr. Coolidge's assertion that "true business" need have no fear of his administration and his references to the part American business had played in the post war reconstruction elicited frequent two and three minute bursts of applause.

The president warned his hearers that the "privilege seeking" type of business need expect no mercy at his hands.

"Those who are engaged in true business," he said, "instead of regarding the government as their opponent and enemy ought to regard it as their vigilant supporter and friend."

The president outlined his opposition to over regulation of industry and said that the future of the United States now in the midst of its greatest prosperity, demands economical development by elimination of waste in materials and men and the realization that business had purged itself of "trusts."

The government, he added, desires those engaged in legitimate business to "rest in security; it wants any wrongs they may suffer to have a legal remedy, and it is all the time striving through administrative machinery to prevent in advance the infliction of injustice."

Even overshadowing internal progress, Mr. Coolidge said toward the close of his address, is progress in internationalism.

Tracing America's entry into the world court in a call stronger than any he previously had uttered, the president said:

"With our already enormous and constantly increasing interests abroad there are constantly accumulating reasons why we should signify our adherence to the permanent court of international justice. Mindful of our determination to avoid all interference in the political affairs which do not concern us, of other nations, I can think of no more reassuring action than the declaration of America that it will whole heartedly join with others in support of the tribunal for the administration of international justice, which they have created."

"It would be the beginning of a new world spirit."

The president approved private foreign loans except where they were used for military purposes or by municipalities which did not practice needed economy.

In regard to the settlement of war debts, Mr. Coolidge said:

"It has been the belief of the government that no permanent stabilization of European finances and currency can be accomplished without a definite adjustment of these obligations. While we realize it is to our advantage to have these debts paid, it is also realized greatly for the advantage of our debtors to have them finally liquidated."

Washington, Nov. 20.—(UP)—News of what may prove to be another tragedy or another romantic rescue at sea was received by the navy radio here today.

A message from the tank steamer Brazos said that it had located the Haitian steamer Ville Des Cayes, said to have been carrying 200 laborers from Santiago De Cuba to island sugar fields and which has been reported as missing.

Last advices were that three members of the crew had been picked up by a British tramp steamer Tuesday and at that time it was reported that the vessel had been sunk in a hurricane.

There was nothing in today's message to indicate the fate of those aboard the Ville Des Cayes, whether they had been rescued when the vessel was located, or whether any were lost with the ship. Absence of information on the subject led navy officers to believe passengers and crew were safe.

QUEEN MOTHER
ALEXANDRA OF
ENGLAND DIEDSUCCUMBS TO HEART DISEASE AT
SANDRINGHAM ES-
TATEBROAD MINDED AND BIG HEART-
ED, SHE HAD WEALTH OF SYMPATHY

London, Nov. 20.—(UP)—Queen Mother Alexandra of England, beloved of the entire empire, died today at her Sandringham estate in Norfolk, following several heart attacks yesterday and today. Death occurred at 5:25 P. M.

The queen was a beautiful woman and even the advancing years did not rob her face of the charm that captivated the nation upon her arrival. She was known as broad minded and big hearted, with a wealth of human sympathy and charm of manner.

The death of her eldest son, Albert Victor, Duke of Clarence, in 1892, was a great blow but she hid her grief in the performance of public duties. Her sixth and youngest child, Prince Alexander, died in 1871, a day after birth. Of her other children, George is now king of England, Princess Louise, (Princess Royal) married the late Duke of Fife, her daughter Maud is queen of Norway and Princess Victoria is unmarried.

Since King Edward's death, Queen Alexandra made her home at Marlborough House or at York Cottage on the Sandringham estate of which she was mistress during Edward's life time.

Of late years the queen mother's sight failed and her hearing was impaired.

Some Americans will recall the aged queen who in 1917 stood near the gates of Buckingham Palace, as King George, his wife, beside him, saluted the American troops on their way to the French front. And again a few years ago, she was at an American function, the army baseball game near London. She had always taken a keen interest in important public functions and was especially known for her charity. Her gracious manner and kindly ways endeared her to the mighty and lowly alike and her passing left a sense of loss from palace to cottage.

The widow of King Edward and mother of the present king, George V, had been in failing health for some time, but the suddenness of her passing after a critical illness lasting only since Thursday morning, shocked and grieved England which had loved and almost worshipped the "Sea King's Daughter From Over the Sea," ever since 1863, when she first set foot on English soil, coming from her Danish homeland.

Though the queen, lacking less than a dozen days of being 81, had been in failing health for some time, the sudden heart shocks of yesterday and today stunned the nation and turned it into deep mourning at her death.

King George and Queen Mary, stopping at Sandringham for some days were the first to go to her bedside, but the royal group was soon increased by the addition of the Princess Royal and Queen Maud of Norway, her daughter. The Duke of York proceeded from London today and later the Prince of Wales on a special train went to Sandringham, after the Guildhall banquet at which London was to give him an official welcome home from South America had been cancelled.

The news spread throughout England and caused the deepest sorrow. Around her home town, Marlborough House, sympathetic throngs became so dense that special police had to be called.

The first word of the queen's illness yesterday showed that her condition was critical. Then this morning, fresh bulletins showed that it had grown even more critical and that she had lost strength.

This afternoon still a further turn for the worse came and oxygen was administered as the aged queen sank rapidly.

King George and Queen Mary were constantly at her bedside from 11 A. M.

Born nearly 81 years ago she was the daughter of the late King Christian IX of Denmark and from her Danish origin she gained Tennyson's impartial description, "The Sea King's Daughter From Over the Sea," to which he added in his poem of welcome:

"Norman and Saxon and Dane are we, but of all us Dane in our welcome to thee."

The death of the beloved queen mother stunned England, just as did the death of her husband 13 years ago.

The king will issue a proclamation prescribing the mourning ob-

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Washington, Nov. 20.—The charges of Mrs. Margaret Ross Lansdowne that an effort had been made to twist her testimony were quashed today by the Shenandoah court of inquiry.

The court found its former judge advocate, Captain Paul Foley, not guilty of her accusations.

The court held that Foley was not guilty of any of the insinuations or charges and that he had dealt with Mrs. Lansdowne in conformity with obligations imposed upon him by law, as a judge advocate of the court.

The verdict amounted to complete exoneration. No improper conduct could be alleged against Foley from the evidence produced in this phase of the case before the court, the decision read by Admiral Hilary P. Jones, president of the board, asserted.

The decision was read at the opening of court today after an executive session, when points of law were argued and decision was finally drawn.

It had the unanimous approval of the four members of the court.

Although completely exonerated, Foley will not return to his former position as judge advocate. Major Henry Leonard, U. S. M. C., retired, who has acted since Foley's resignation, will continue.

The president outlined his opposition to over regulation of industry and said that the future of the United States now in the midst of its greatest prosperity, demands economical development by elimination of waste in materials and men and the realization that business had purged itself of "trusts."

The government, he added, desires those engaged in legitimate business to "rest in security; it wants any wrongs they may suffer to have a legal remedy, and it is all the time striving through administrative machinery to prevent in advance the infliction of injustice."

Even overshadowing internal progress, Mr. Coolidge said toward the close of his address, is progress in internationalism.

Urging America's entry into the world court in a call stronger than any he previously had uttered, the president said:

"With our already enormous and constantly increasing interests abroad there are constantly accumulating reasons why we should signify our adherence to the permanent court of international justice. Mindful of our determination to avoid all interference in the political affairs of other nations, I can think of no more reassuring action than the declaration of America that it will wholeheartedly join with others in support of the tribunal for the administration of international justice, which they have created."

"It would be the beginning of a new world spirit."

The president approved private foreign loans except where they were used for military purposes or by municipalities which did not practice needed economy.

In regard to the settlement of war debts, Mr. Coolidge said:

"It has been the belief of the government that no permanent stabilization of European finances and currency can be accomplished without a definite adjustment of these obligations. While we realize it is to our advantage to have these debts paid, it is also realized greatly for the advantage of our debtors to have them finally liquidated."

SHOOTS AND KILLS FORMER WIFE AND THEN HIMSELF

UNABLE TO SOLVE POISONED MILK CASE IN MADISON

Madison, Wis., Nov. 20.—(UP)—Solution of the third attempt in Madison in three years to poison whole families by depositing bottles of milk containing poison on porches seemed improbable today with the authorities running up against a blank wall in clues to the identity of the person who is thought to be a maniac, with periodic spells of insanity.

ANOTHER TRAGEDY AT SEA OR A FINE RESCUE OF VESSEL

NAVY RADIO RECEIVES BULLET-INS AT WASHINGTON,
D. C.

TANK STEAMER BRAZOS PICKS UP HAITIAN STEAMER VILLE
DES CAYES

Washington, Nov. 20.—(UP)—News of what may prove to be another tragedy or another romantic rescue at sea was received by the navy radio here today.

A message from the tank steamer Brazos said that it had located the Haitian steamer Ville Des Cayes, said to have been carrying 200 laborers from Santiago De Cuba to island sugar fields and which has been reported as missing.

Last advices were that three members of the crew had been picked up by a British tramp steamer Tuesday and at that time it was reported that the vessel had been sunk in a hurricane.

There was nothing in today's message to indicate the fate of those aboard the Ville Des Cayes, whether they had been rescued when the vessel was located, or whether any were lost with the ship. Absence of information on the subject led navy officers to believe passengers and crew were safe.

The message said the Brazos found the ship 18 miles from Pilon harbor and was towing the vessel into that port.

QUEEN MOTHER ALEXANDRA OF ENGLAND DIED

SUCCUMBS TO HEART DISEASE AT
SANDRINGHAM ES-TATE

BROAD MINDED AND BIG HEART-ED, SHE HAD WEALTH OF SYMPATHY

London, Nov. 20.—(UP)—Queen Mother Alexandra of England, beloved of the entire empire, died today at her Sandringham estate in Norfolk, following several heart attacks yesterday and today. Death occurred at 5:25 P. M.

The queen was a beautiful woman and even the advancing years did not rob her face of the charm that captivated the nation upon her arrival. She was known as broad minded and big hearted, with a wealth of human sympathy and charm of manner.

The death of her eldest son, Albert Victor, Duke of Clarence, in 1892, was a great blow but she hid her grief in the performance of public duties. Her sixth and youngest child, Prince Alexander, died in 1871, a day after birth. Of her other children, George is now king of England, Princess Louise, (Princess Royal) married the late Duke of Fife, her daughter Maud is queen of Norway and Princess Victoria is unmarried.

Since King Edward's death, Queen Alexandra made her home at Marlborough House or at York Cottage on the Sandringham estate of which she was mistress during Edward's life time.

Of late years the queen mother's sight failed and her hearing was impaired.

Some Americans will recall the aged queen who in 1917 stood near the gates of Buckingham Palace, as King George, his wife, beside him, saluted the American troops on their way to the French front. And again a few years ago, she was at an American function, the army baseball game near London. She had always taken a keen interest in important public functions and was especially known for her charity. Her gracious manner and kindly ways endeared her to the mighty and lowly alike and her passing left a sense of loss from palace to cottage.

The widow of King Edward and mother of the present king, George V, had been in failing health for some time, but the suddenness of her passing after a critical illness lasting only since Thursday morning, shocked and grieved England which had loved and almost worshipped the "Sea King's Daughter From Over the Sea," ever since 1863, when she first set foot on English soil, coming from her Danish homeland.

Though the queen, lacking less than a dozen days of being 81, had been in failing health for some time, the sudden heart shocks of yesterday and today stunned the nation and turned it into deep mourning at her death.

King George and Queen Mary, stopping at Sandringham for some days, were the first to go to her bedside, but the royal group was soon increased by the addition of the Princess Royal and Queen Maud of Norway, her daughter. The Duke of York proceeded from London today and later the Prince of Wales on a special train went on to Sandringham, after the Guildhall banquet at which London was to give him an official welcome home from South America had been cancelled.

The news spread throughout England and caused the deepest sorrow. Around her home town, Marlborough House, sympathetic throngs became so dense that special police had to be called.

The first word of the queen's illness yesterday showed that her condition was critical. Then this morning, fresh bulletins showed that it had grown even more critical and that she had lost strength.

This afternoon still a further turn for the worse came and oxygen was administered as the aged queen sank rapidly.

King George and Queen Mary were constantly at her bedside from 11 A. M.

Born nearly 81 years ago she was the daughter of the late King Christian IX of Denmark and from her Danish origin she gained Tennyson's impartial description, "The Sea King's Daughter From Over the Sea," to which he added in his poem of welcome:

"Norman and Saxon and Dane are we, but of all us Dane in our welcome to thee."

The death of the beloved queen mother stunned England, just as did the death of her husband 13 years ago.

The king will issue a proclamation prescribing the mourning ob-

Ohio State Penitentiary, Columbus, O., Nov. 20.—(UP)—Denied executive clemency, Rucor Tudor, Cleveland wife murderer, and Robert Little, Birmingham negro, who slew a Cincinnati watchman, forfeited their lives in the electric chair here today.

Little shot John Keller during an attempted holdup. Little's body was sent to Birmingham.

JANESVILLE GIRLS

Beloit, Wis., Nov. 20.—(UP)—Pleas of guilty to enticing two Janesville girls, aged 18 and 19, to a cottage near Edgerton, where liquor alleged to have been drugged was served them, resulted in the sentencing of Lester Hartzell to six months in the Milwaukee house of correction and William Condon, Jr., and Elmer Lee fines of $50 each and costs.

Charles Highlands was allowed to go when it was shown he was an innocent party to the occurrence. Del Gower, also wanted in connection with the party, has not been apprehended.

St. Paul, Nov. 20.—(UP)—Denied hotel accommodations, because of his race, the Rev. Charles A. Tindley, Philadelphia, one of the principal speakers at the Methodist's Men's council, opening here Sunday, is to be the guest of Bishop Charles Edward Locke.

Efforts of officers in the council were said to avail nothing in securing hotel rooms for the noted preacher. Rev. Tindley is pastor of the largest Methodist church in the world.

COL. COOLIDGE MUCH IMPROVED

PRESIDENT'S FATHER SPENDS ANOTHER RESTFUL
NIGHT

Plymouth, Vt., Nov. 20.—(UP)—Continued improvement in the condition of Colonel John C. Coolidge was evident this morning, according to his nurse, Mrs. May Johnson.

The president's father, who has been confined to his home with a recurrence of his heart ailment, spent another restful night and was still asleep when his nurse visited him at 7:45 A. M.

Colonel Coolidge's waking hour is 6 A. M. But last night he stayed up to hear his son's New York address over the radio and retired a little later than usual.

Washington, Nov. 20.—President and Mrs. Coolidge arrived back at the White House at 7:15 A. M. today from New York where the president last night addressed the New York State Chamber of Commerce.

Plymouth, Vt., Nov. 20.—Colonel John C. Coolidge, father of the president, awoke at 8 A. M. today, two hours later than usual and told his nurse, Mrs. May Johnson, he believed his condition was "quite a lot better than yesterday."

CHARGES MADE BY MRS. LANSLOWNE ORDERED QUASHED

COURT HELD FORMER JUDGE
ADVOCATE WAS NOT GUILTY

THAT HE DEALT WITH HER IN CONFORMITY WITH LEGAL OBLIGATIONS

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Washington, Nov. 20.—The charges of Mrs. Margaret Ross Lansdowne that an effort had been made to twist her testimony were quashed today by the Shenandoah court of inquiry.

The court found its former judge advocate, Captain Paul Foley, not guilty of her accusations.

The court held that Foley was not guilty of any of the insinuations or charges and that he had dealt with Mrs. Lansdowne in conformity with obligations imposed upon him by law, as judge advocate of the court. The verdict amounted to complete exoneration.

No improper conduct could be alleged against Foley from the evidence produced in this phase of the case before the court, the decision read by Admiral Hilary P. Jones, president of the board, asserted.

The decision was read at the opening of court today after an executive session, when points of law were argued and decision was finally drawn.

It had the unanimous approval of the four members of the court.

Although completely exonerated, Foley will not return to his former position as judge advocate. Major Henry Leonard, U. S. M. C., retired, who has acted since Foley's resignation, will continue.

2 BOBBED HAIR GIRLS HELD ON BURGLARY CHARGES

Minneapolis, Nov. 20.—(UP)—Two bobbed haired girls, one only 14 years old, were held by Minneapolis police today on burglary charges.

Both are said to have taken large quantities of clothing and jewelry from a rooming house.

FOREST FIRES UNDER CONTROL

Moose Lake, Minn., Nov. 20.—(UP)—Forest fires of serious nature which have been reported from Bruno and Askov near here are under control today, according to reports sent to Grover M. Conzel, state forester.

The fires started in peat bogs. Whipped up by strong winds they gained considerable headway yesterday and destroyed much standing timber and some second growth despite the light layer of snow covering the ground.

Scores of fire fighters are working to keep the flames in check and authorities expect to have complete control of the spread by tomorrow, it was said.

Minneapolis, Nov. 20.—(UP)—Application of the Minnesota-Western Railroad Company for extension from a joint rate order of the state railroad and warehouse commission was denied today. The road formerly the Luce line is an electric service operating out of Minneapolis.

ASK POLICE TO DROP DRY RAIDS

CHICAGO COUNCIL RESOLUTION
ASKS WHOLE ATTENTION
GIVEN CRIME WAVE

Chicago, Nov. 20.—(UP)—A resolution that will instruct the chief of police to withdraw all members of the police force from assisting in prohibition enforcement and put them to running down criminals, was ordered drawn by the city council committee on judiciary by a 9 to 2 vote last night.

This was considered to be a distinct blow at Mayor Dever's dry law enforcement plan, which would employ the 5,000 members of the Chicago police force to assist in enforcing prohibition.

A bitter fight is expected to develop on the council floor if the committee approves the resolution ordered drafted.

GET TOGETHER TEA

Brainerd Musical Club to Have Annual Function at Chamber of Commerce Rooms

On Saturday afternoon, November 21st from 3:30 to 5 o'clock, the Brainerd Musical club will have the annual get together tea at the Chamber of Commerce rooms, in the Iron Exchange building.

The meeting will be a feast for both the body and soul—the tables are always gleaming in silver and white, with lovely flowers to delight the eye, while refreshments meet the needs of the inner man. It is a very pleasant way to spend part of the afternoon, or a brief respite from shopping, but more than that, it affords an opportunity to meet informally many ladies who are familiar because they have been seen at concerts, but whom there has been no way of meeting before. It is hoped that as many of the members as can will be out at some time during the afternoon, and that no one will be at all hesitant about making herself known.

The afternoon tea is in charge of a committee headed by Mrs. John Carlson, and the efficiency of the committee is proof enough that the tea will be all that one desires. Everybody should make a special effort to be there.

There will be several musical numbers in addition: Miss Rickard will sing, accompanied by Lorraine Morrison; Geraldine Kiebler will play the violin, and Mildred Skauge will give some selections on the piano.

You are invited to have coffee with us tomorrow, Saturday, Nov. 21, at the Brainerd Co-operative Merc. Co.

CUTTING THE CORNERS

Using this as the caption, "Cutting the Corners," C. A. Prosser, dean of Dunwoody Institute, gave this good piece of advice in the current issue of The Dunwoody News:

"The other day an accident took place in Minneapolis which resulted in the death of one person and the serious injury of another. When the case was taken into court for investigation, it appeared, to use the language of the jury, that the accident happened because the driver was one of the automobiles that cut the corners. The driver was not present in court. He could not be because he had passed out of the world. The other driver was there on crutches, fortunate, indeed, to have escaped by a narrow margin the same thing.

"It occurred to me how true the whole thing is of many other matters in life. Cutting the corners is, of course, a very bad thing for automobile drivers. Wiser than the driver, the law forbids cutting the corners with automobiles but many drivers do it anyhow. They not only disobey the law and make themselves liable to arrest; they expose themselves and everyone with them in the car to serious injury; they expose people in other cars who are the innocent victims of circumstances.

"Cutting corners, however, is not confined to driving automobiles or to the drivers of automobiles. People cut the corners in regard to many other things in life. A fellow comes to school. He is supposed to do certain work, meet certain rules and regulations, and conform to certain requirements. If he expects to amount to anything in the world, he will not cut the corners. Many fellows cut the corners. They are supposed to be at school at 8:30 in the morning. They are not there. They cut the corners and they hope to get by.

"They are supposed to meet certain standards in shop. They are expected to be neat and systematic and orderly in their work. They are supposed to apply themselves diligently to their tasks. They are supposed not to watch the clock. They are supposed to do an honest piece of work and meet approved standards of workmanship. But they cut the corners.

"In the classroom, they are expected to meet standards and requirements in mathematics, in science, in drawing, in English, economics and industrial history, and all that. Sometimes when they are interested in some subjects, they do them pretty well. They cut the corners on others. For example, they cut the corners of English, not realizing that they fail to do certain things in English which may keep them from promotion to a job they very much want.

"Do not cut the corners. If you do, remember that in the end you will come to grief just as certainly as the automobile driver who cuts the corners in reckless fashion forgetful of consequences."

PAID A FINE TRIBUTE

It was a splendid tribute George D. LaBar paid to Louis Hohman Tuesday at the Rotary luncheon held at the high school building. Mr. LaBar is in a position to speak authoritatively since he has served on the school board for seventeen years and Mr. Hohman has a record of twenty-two years service.

Mr. LaBar told of the benefits the city schools had received through the untiring service of Mr. Hohman who at times neglected his own business that the schools might have the best he could give to them.

The average member of elective bodies serves but a term or two or until he becomes familiar with the work and then hands the work over to another and he too gains his experience at the expense of the taxpayer; but Mr. Hohman has become familiar with the work and by his continuing and working has been of great value to the school system.

Mr. LaBar should be commended for bringing the splendid service of Mr. Hohman to the attention of the community. The average school board member or councilman generally hears mostly criticism. He hears few commendatory remarks even when he deserves them. If the records of the public servants were more carefully looked into and credit given for good work done, there would not be so many capable men who refuse to give service on these elective bodies.

Individual citizens, parent-teachers' associations and clubs generally who are interested in civic affairs would find it pleasing and most profitable to watch the records of the members of the school board and then give due credit to those who by their work are rendering the community a real service.

WELCOME, FARMERS TO BRAINERD

THE foundation, the only real enduring kind of a foundation, of any community is agriculture. It stands to reason that without the farmer we'd all go hungry. If farming flourishes, then every other industry makes a good showing.

If farming "loses out," and we have had a taste of that, then not only Brainerd territory, but the state of Minnesota and the United States of America are sufferers.

President J. F. Reed, head of the Minnesota Farm Bureau, has well said that agriculture needs as much organization as any other industrial, financial or transportation or labor group. Agriculture will not solve its problems permanently until it gets as much recognition by law as the other groups named.

The farmer faces many vital questions, freight rates, marketing, crop production, the vagaries of the weather, roads, taxes, and what not. He must be a successful business man plus a tiller of the soil to meet the many problems facing him and demanding proper solution so that he may continue successfully to face natural and artificial elements and make not only a living from the soil, but the profit too that is due any lines of business.

We hope the deliberations of the Crow Wing County Farm Bureau will be profitable, that its membership will continue to grow and that the splendid record made in the past will be further enlarged. We also point with pride to the achievements of our county agent, E. G. Roth, who in his soil survey, treatment, etc., with natural elements at hand in our county, has gained nationwide recognition.

law that will do this for the American farmers.

Co-operative Marketing

"The marketing of farm products in a co-operative way must go forth. The spread between the price the farmer obtains for his products and that paid by the consumer is entirely too much. During the year 1924, the department of agriculture estimated the products from American farms to net the producers $10,000,000,000. For this, the consumers paid $30,000,000,000. For marketing and distributing farm products, for each dollar obtained by the producer, the consumer paid $3. The spread is too much and some means must be wrought out to correct this. It can be done through co-operative marketing. The producer must obtain more of the price paid for his product by the consumer. An outstanding example of this in Minnesota is the marketing of our butter. During the past year the producer of butterfat in Minnesota obtained for their product more than eight cents a pound—more than the producers of butterfat in any state that surrounds us. This did not add to the price of the product paid by the consumer. There are many other striking examples of the value of co-operation in the marketing of farm products. Minnesota leads all the states in the co-operative marketing of the products of the farm. This must be refined and extended until the time comes when the marketing of farm products will be a system carried on by the producers themselves. This means that any man or organization standing between the producer and the consumer that does not add an economic value to the product he handles must get into some other occupation.

"There are many important things besides the ones mentioned standing in the way of prosperity for agriculture. The time must come, and I believe it will, in the not distant future when ocean going vessels will come to our lake ports. Probably the most important thing touching transportation is the opening of the St. Lawrence river to ocean going ships. That this will be done, I have no doubt. The time will depend upon the insistence of the 40 million people tributary to the area, exert. When this improvement is made, it will make a saving in normal times of eight cents a bushel in freight rates on our wheat; other exportable farm products in like proportion. It will build up industrial centers in the interior where the products needed by the farmer and industry will be produced, making a market for the products of the farm. The transportation on the Great Lakes is now the cheapest transportation in the world. That the improvement of the 300 miles between Lake Ontario and Montreal must be done to meet the growing requirements of the great interior of America, not only on the products sent out, but on our necessities coming in, will be done when the people affected on both sides of the international boundary line demand it. Our farmers are studying their problems more intensive than ever before. Taxes, government, finance, transportation are all being given intensive thought.

The annual report of the secretary-treasurer and the annual report of County Agent E. G. Roth were then read. This was followed by election of officers for the coming year.

CUTTING THE CORNERS

Using this as the caption, "Cutting the Corners," C. A. Prosser, dean of Dunwoody Institute, gave this good piece of advice in the current issue of The Dunwoody News:

"The other day an accident took place in Minneapolis which resulted in the death of one person and the serious injury of another. When the case was taken into court for investigation, it appeared, to use the language of the jury, that the accident happened because the driver was one of the automobiles that cut the corners. The driver was not present in court. He could not be because he had passed out of the world. The other driver was there on crutches, fortunate, indeed, to have escaped by a narrow margin the same thing.

"It occurred to me how true the whole thing is of many other matters in life. Cutting the corners is, of course, a very bad thing for automobile drivers. Wiser than the driver, the law forbids cutting the corners with automobiles but many drivers do it anyhow. They not only disobey the law and make themselves liable to arrest; they expose themselves and everyone with them in the car to serious injury; they expose people in other cars who are the innocent victims of circumstances.

"Cutting corners, however, is not confined to driving automobiles or to the drivers of automobiles. People cut the corners in regard to many other things in life. A fellow comes to school. He is supposed to do certain work, meet certain rules and regulations, and conform to certain requirements. If he expects to amount to anything in the world, he will not cut the corners. Many fellows cut the corners. They are supposed to be at school at 8:30 in the morning. They are not there. They cut the corners and they hope to get by.

"They are supposed to meet certain standards in shop. They are expected to be neat and systematic and orderly in their work. They are supposed to apply themselves diligently to their tasks. They are supposed not to watch the clock. They are supposed to do an honest piece of work and meet approved standards of workmanship. But they cut the corners.

"In the classroom, they are expected to meet standards and requirements in mathematics, in science, in drawing, in English, economics and industrial history, and all that. Sometimes when they are interested in some subjects, they do them pretty well. They cut the corners on others. For example, they cut the corners of English, not realizing that they fail to do certain things in English which may keep them from promotion to a job they very much want.

"Do not cut the corners. If you do, remember that in the end you will come to grief just as certainly as the automobile driver who cuts the corners in reckless fashion forgetful of consequences."

PAID A FINE TRIBUTE

It was a splendid tribute George D. LaBar paid to Louis Hohman Tuesday at the Rotary luncheon held at the high school building. Mr. LaBar is in a position to speak authoritatively since he has served on the school board for seventeen years and Mr. Hohman has a record of twenty-two years service.

Mr. LaBar told of the benefits the city schools had received through the untiring service of Mr. Hohman who at times neglected his own business that the schools might have the best he could give to them.

The average member of elective bodies serves but a term or two or until he becomes familiar with the work and then hands the work over to another and he too gains his experience at the expense of the taxpayer; but Mr. Hohman has become familiar with the work and by his continuing and working has been of great value to the school system.

Mr. LaBar should be commended for bringing the splendid service of Mr. Hohman to the attention of the community. The average school board member or councilman generally hears mostly criticism. He hears few commendatory remarks even when he deserves them. If the records of the public servants were more carefully looked into and credit given for good work done, there would not be so many capable men who refuse to give service on these elective bodies.

We pay more for schools than for any other item on the tax budget. Our board members serve without remuneration. Individual citizens, parent-teachers' associations and clubs generally who are interested in civic affairs would find it pleasing and most profitable to watch the records of the members of the school board and then give due credit to those who by their work are rendering the community a real service.

HRABIC JURY DEADLOCK AFTER TWENTY-NINE HOURS

FARMER ON TRIAL FOR MURDER. JURY IS DIS-MISSED

HRABIC CHARGED WITH SLAYING HIS HIRED MAN ON FARM

Faribault, Minn., Nov. 20.—(UP)—After deliberating 29 hours, the jury in the trial for murder of Harry Hrabic, farmer, living near here, was dismissed today. The foreman reported the vote deadlocked at 7 to 5.

Hrabic was charged with the murder in the first degree, for the slaying of Oliver Johnson, his hired man, early this fall.

Following an argument in which Johnson was ordered from the Hrabic farm, it was alleged, the farmer attacked him with a wrecking bar. Johnson stumbled into the road in front of the barn yard, where his prostrate body was unmercifully beaten.

Hrabic notified the sheriff immediately after the fight. Johnson died just as authorities arrived.

At his trial Hrabic testified that Johnson had refused to leave his farm as ordered, had threatened his life and was too familiar with members of his family. Mrs. Hrabic gave sensational testimony to substantiate the defense charges.

Another jury will be empaneled and a new trial held.

Wembley Comedy

One of the hundred thousand things to see at Wembley is an exhibit representing a grocer's shop in which cheese, oatmeal, bread, sugar, and so on, are lying about with no wrapping. Dummy rats, mice, and other small beasts are shown eating up the good things, and it is explained that this proves how important it is that food should be made up in properly packed parcels before being exposed for sale.

But there are real rats and mice at Wembley, and one night they discovered the unwrapped food and did what the dummy rats were pretending to do—ate it all up, so that in the morning there was not a scrap left. They drove home the moral, all right, but at rather too heavy a cost for repetition every day.—Family Herald.

Women's Rights in Siberia

After 18 years of obedient married life with a well-to-do peasant of Chonokorov Nikov, Mrs. Doria Kuboreva, absorbed the Soviet doctrine of woman's rights and began taking part in village politics. Her husband's beatings failed to discourage her and she was elected a member of the village Soviet. When she warned her husband that he must pay his taxes, he stabbed her with a knife. "The proletariat court will punish with great severity," adds the Siberian correspondent, who reported the incident. Kuboreva cannot be given more than ten years' imprisonment, as a single murder without robbery is not a capital crime in Russia.

Speed records for men are as follows: Skating, 1 mile, 2 minutes 35 seconds; swimming, 22 minutes 34 seconds; running, 4 minutes 10-15 seconds; bicycling, 1 minute 4-15 seconds. Against these marks, the horse has set 1 minute 35-25 seconds for running and 1 minute 50-3 seconds for trotting.

PLEADS GUILTY TO MANSLAUGHTER

EIK RIVER MAN SENTENCED TO 10 YEARS IN PRISON FOR CAR MISHAP

Eik River, Minn., Nov. 20.—(UP)—Julius Landowski, charged with manslaughter for the death of Mrs. Mary Anderson, whom he ran down with an automobile last summer, pleaded guilty and was sentenced today to ten years in prison.

Landowski drove from the scene of the accident but lost control of his automobile in the hasty attempt to escape apprehension and was arrested a mile away where his car dived. Mrs. Anderson was 83 years old.

Work on Traffic Problem

In an effort to solve the congested traffic problem, the Paris police are planning a laboratory street. This novel idea was suggested by M. Roeland, a city councillor, and M. Marain, prefect of police, is heartily in accord with the experiment. The laboratory street will provide all sorts of tests for motor traffic to determine the cause of accidents. Various surface materials and safety devices will be tested, as well as mistakes in driving and the most efficient control of traffic.

Man-Made Hurricane

To drive out the poisonous carbon monoxide produced by 46,000 autos that will pass daily through the new vehicular tunnel nearing completion beneath the Hudson river, a tearing hurricane will whirl constantly through the tube, says Popular Science Monthly. Vast Supply of Potash

A thousand years' supply of potash for the American farmer, making us independent of supplies from Chile and other foreign countries, is possible as a result of a discovery of a new process for making potassium sulphate from greensand. Large quantities of this peculiar type of sandstone are found in Delaware, New Jersey, and Maryland near the surface so that it can be worked with steam shovels.—Popular Science Monthly.

British Thrift

The latest figures on savings show that two-thirds of the people of Great Britain maintain savings accounts in some form. More than 15,000,000 people have amassed $3,786,200,000 in savings and savings certificates. Savings bank deposits have increased 100 per cent in less than a generation. Despite war losses since 1914 the national capital of Great Britain is now estimated in excess of $82,000,000,000. Figures from co-operative societies show a membership of more than 33,000,000. One writer on the subject says that "British thrift explains British policy, tolerance and love of order."—Thrift Magazine.

Uncle Sam Breeds Bugs

In a strange nursery on the banks of the Potomac the United States government keeps a host of fleas, mosquitoes, mites and flies. When fully grown, they serve to test poisons that are sold throughout the country for extermination of insects, says Popular Science Monthly. Among the most valued assistants on the bug farm are four dogs, two cats and 125 chickens, which produce bumper crops of fleas and mites for the tests.

Turtle Lake, Wis., Nov. 20.—(UP)—Reports that pockets of natural gas have been discovered under ice coating a number of small lakes four miles northwest of here stirred the community with oil-gas excitement today.

The discovery is reported to have been made by hunters who punctured ice and found the escaping gas burned with a steady blue flame.

City officials told the United Press the phenomenon had been witnessed by a large number of townspeople. None, however, had visited the reported gas fields personally.

HRABIC JURY DEADLOCK AFTER TWENTY-NINE HOURS

FARMER ON TRIAL FOR MURDER. JURY IS DISMISSED

HRABIC CHARGED WITH SLAYING HIS HIRED MAN ON FARM

Faribault, Minn., Nov. 20.—(UP)—After deliberating 29 hours, the jury in the trial for murder of Harry Hrabic, farmer, living near here, was dismissed today. The foreman reported the vote deadlocked at 7 to 5.

Hrabic was charged with the murder in the first degree, for the slaying of Oliver Johnson, his hired man, early this fall.

Following an argument in which Johnson was ordered from the Hrabic farm, it was alleged, the farmer attacked him with a wrecking bar, Johnson stumbled into the road in front of the barn yard, where his prostrate body was unmercifully beaten.

Hrabic notified the sheriff immediately after the fight, Johnson died just as authorities arrived.

At his trial Hrabic testified that Johnson had refused to leave his farm as ordered, had threatened his life and was too familiar with members of his family. Mrs. Hrabic gave sensational testimony to substantiate the defense charges.

Another jury will be empaneled and a new trial held.

Wembley Comedy

One of the hundred thousand things to see at Wembley is an exhibit representing a grocer's shop in which cheese, oatmeal, bread, sugar, and so on, are lying about with no wrapping. Dummy rats, mice, and other small beasts are shown eating up the good things, and it is explained that this proves how important it is that food should be made up in properly packed parcels before being exposed for sale.

But there are real rats and mice at Wembley, and one night they discovered the unwrapped food and did what the dummy rats were pretending to do—ate it all up, so that in the morning there was not a scrap left. They drove home the moral, all right, but at rather too heavy a cost for repetition every day.—Family Herald.

Women's Rights in Siberia

After 18 years of obedient married life with a well-to-do peasant of Chernokorov Nikov, Mrs. Doria Kuboreva, absorbed the Soviet doctrine of woman's rights and began taking part in village politics. Her husband's beatings failed to discourage her and she was elected a member of the village Soviet. When she warned her husband that he must pay his taxes, he stabbed her with a knife. "The proletarian court will punish with great severity," adds the Siberian correspondent, who reported the incident. Kuboreva cannot be given more than ten years' imprisonment, as a single murder without robbery is not a capital crime in Russia.

Landowski drove from the scene of the accident but lost control of his automobile in the hasty attempt to escape apprehension and was arrested a mile away where his car ditched. Mrs. Anderson was 83 years old.

Work on Traffic Problem

In an effort to solve the congested traffic problem, the Paris police are planning a laboratory street. This novel idea was suggested by M. Roeland, a city councillor, and M. Marain, prefect of police, is heartily in accord with the experiment. The laboratory street will provide all sorts of tests for motor traffic to determine the cause of accidents. Various surface materials and safety devices will be tested, as well as mistakes in driving and the most efficient control of traffic.

Vast Supply of Potash

A thousand years' supply of potash for the American farmer, making us independent of supplies from Chile and other foreign countries, is possible as a result of a discovery of a new process for making potassium sulphate from greensand. British Thrift

The latest figures on savings show that two-thirds of the people of Great Britain maintain savings accounts in some form. More than 15,000,000 people have amassed $3,763,200,000 in savings and savings certificates. Savings bank deposits have increased 100 per cent in less than a generation. Despite war losses, since 1914 the national capital of Great Britain is now estimated in excess of $92,000,000,000. Figures from co-operative societies show a membership of more than 33,000,000. One writer on the subject says that "British thrift explains British policy, tolerance and love of order."—Thrill Magazine.

Uncle Sam Breeds Bugs

In a strange nursery on the banks of the Potomac the United States government keeps a host of fleas, mosquitoes, mites and flies. When fully grown, they serve to test poisons that are sold throughout the country for extermination of insects, says Popular Science Monthly. Among the most valued assistants on the bug farm are four dogs, two cats and 125 chickens, which produce bumper crops of fleas and mites for the tests.

POCKETS OF NATURAL GAS DISCOVERED UNDER ICE COATING

Turtle Lake, Wis., Nov. 20.—(UP)—Reports that pockets of natural gas have been discovered under ice coating a number of small lakes four miles northwest of here stirred the community with oil-gas excitement today.

The discovery is reported to have been made by hunters who punctured ice and found the escaping gas burned with a steady blue flame.

City officials told the United Press the phenomenon had been witnessed by a large number of townspeople. None, however, had visited the reported gas fields personally.

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
New York, Nov. 20.—Red Grange will lead a team of all star players against a team that is being organized by Tim Callahan, captain and all-American guard of the 1920 Yale team, in a game to be played at Coral Gables, Fla., on Christmas day, Callahan announced today at the Yale club here.

The former Eli star said he had been delegated by real estate interests with which he has been associated to organize a team to play in six big games after Christmas.

He declared he knew Grange was going to play in Florida and that his team would include Earl Britton, star fullback of the Illinois team, several members of the Chicago Bears and other star players from the western conference.

Callahan, who was one of the greatest linemen of all time, refused to mention any of the players he was seeking for his team, but the belief was justified from the conversation that some of the stars are playing tomorrow in the east. He explained that he had become interested because weather conditions will not permit games in Florida until after Christmas.

He said that two other big teams were being organized, one to be known as the Princeton Collegians, the other as the Notre Dame Collegians. The Notre Dame team, he said, will consist of the famous four horsemen, Stuhldreher, Crowley, Layden and Miller, and Eddie Anderson, Kiley, Bach and other former stars from South Bend.

The Princeton team will include several of the assistant coaches, Wittmer, Keck and others, and some Princeton Varsity players.

GRANGE SAYS HE SIGNED NO CONTRACT

Chicago, Nov. 20.—Harold "Red" Grange and his University of Illinois football team are speeding to Columbus for their game with Ohio State Saturday, giving the famous football star a few hours' respite from the pulling and hauling he had been subjected to because of rumors that he has signed to play professional football after the game with Ohio.

Grange's last words before the team left Champaign last night reiterated his many denials that he had actually signed a contract.

"I have not signed anything," he said. "I have not turned professional and I won't do a thing about this matter until after Saturday's game."

From various sources comes the information that Red has his plans all made for his debut in the professional world. The tentative program calls for him to play with the professional Chicago Bears here on Thanksgiving day, then a tour of Florida and later on the movies. According to the stories Grange will play with Syd Chaplin in a screen version of "The College Widow."

GRAND FINALE IN THE FOOTBALL GAMES SATURDAY

FIRST PLACE AT STAKE IN MIN-NESOTA-MICHIGAN CLASH

VICTORY FOR GOPHERS WILL MAKE THEM UNDISPUTED
CHAMPIONS

By Edward C. DERR
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Chicago, Nov. 20.—The grand finale of the 1925 football season in the Big Ten conference comes tomorrow in four games, one of which will determine the championship.

First place will be at stake when Minnesota and Michigan clash at Ann Arbor. A victory for the Gophers will make them undisputed champions with two wins and a tie game comprising their season's record.

If Michigan wins, the Gophers will be tumbled far down the list because of their slim schedule and Michigan will be rated the most powerful team in the conference. The Wolverines' record would then be five victories and one defeat and second place honors would go to Northwestern with three wins and one defeat. Because Northwestern gave Michigan its only defeat so far, however, Wildcat enthusiasts will claim they have an equal right to the title with Michigan.

The Illinois-Ohio State game at Columbus brings together two ancient rivals but since both teams have been eliminated from titular consideration the chief interest in this battle will center around Red Grange, who finishes his collegiate career and has promised to make public immediately after the game his plans for the future.

Grange has been so busy denying rumors that he had turned pro that

"I have not signed anything," he said. "I have not turned professional and I won't do a thing about this matter until after Saturday's game."

From various sources comes the information that Red has his plans all made for his debut in the professional world. The tentative program calls for him to play with the professional Chicago Bears here on Thanksgiving day, then a tour of Florida and later on the movies. According to the stories Grange will play with Syd Chaplin in a screen version of "The College Widow."

CROWD OF FANS FLOOD ANN ARBOR

5 SPECIAL TRAINS, 12 COACHES
EACH, HEADED FOR FOOT-BALL GAME

Minneapolis, Nov. 20.—(UP)—Gophers took to the ties today in a procession that will flood Ann Arbor tomorrow for the Big Ten championship Minnesota-Michigan football game. Ticketless, but undaunted by reports that the Wolverine stadium is sold out, demand for railroad accommodations continued to increase.

Five special trains of 12 coaches each were scheduled to leave at different hours through the day.

The team, coaches, trainers and miscellaneous aides de camp entrained last night with one of the greatest send-off demonstrations in the history of the university in their cars. After a gigantic bonfire on the campus, 5,000 students, led by the university band, marched upon the depot. Platforms were commandeered while all Minnesota, with its first possible Big Ten championship team in years, roared encouragement.

Thrive on Soccer Sport

Soccer football has replaced former merry-making habits of German university students, according to Dr. Erwin Goldmacher, professor of national economy at Cologne university, who arrived at New York recently with 46 graduates. They came to study the advanced business methods employed by American firms. Doctor Goldmacher said athletics now was considered a major subject in virtually all German universities.

CHAMPIONS

By Edward C. DERR
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Chicago, Nov. 20.—The grand finale of the 1925 football season in the Big Ten conference comes tomorrow in four games, one of which will determine the championship.

First place will be at stake when Minnesota and Michigan clash at Ann Arbor. A victory for the Gophers will make them undisputed champions with two wins and a tie game comprising their season's record.

If Michigan wins, the Gophers will be tumbled far down the list because of their slim schedule and Michigan will be rated the most powerful team in the conference.

The Wolverines' record would then be five victories and one defeat and second place honors would go to Northwestern with three wins and one defeat. Because Northwestern gave Michigan its only defeat so far, however, Wildcat enthusiasts will claim they have an equal right to the title with Michigan.

The Illinois-Ohio State game at Columbus brings together two ancient rivals but since both teams have been eliminated from titular consideration the chief interest in this battle will center around Red Grange, who finishes his collegiate career and has promised to make public immediately after the game his plans for the future.

Illini supporters fear he will not be in the best of condition and may not end his career in a blaze of glory.

Chicago and Wisconsin with identical records to date, meet at Stagg Field. There is no love between these two universities and the game is always bitterly contested. They played to a tie last year but the Badgers are favored to win tomorrow, partly because they seem to have a better team and partly because the Maroon strength has been cut by the ineffectuality of four regulars.

Indiana and Purdue will fight it out for cellar position at Bloomington. Each team has three defeats and no victory to boast about.

The other conference schools have finished their schedules and will meet strong non-conference teams, Northwestern clashing with Notre Dame at South Bend and Iowa playing Southern California at Los Angeles.

knocked out Luis Firpo, the prize cow of the Argentine, two seasons ago. Dempsey's record, then, as a titleholder, would be four years and a few months.

Unquestionably Jeffries would have been far out in front as an enduring champion if he had not retired in 1905 after looking over the field and concluding no other logical opponent existed. At the time the California boiler-juggler had been on top for six full years.

When Jeff did come back in 1910, lured by the pot of gold dangled enticingly in front of his retreating back by Tex Rickard, it was as a challenger, not as champion.

Corbett won the title in 1892 and held it a little less than five years. Bob Fitzsimmons succeeded Corbett and was champion for a trifle more than two years.

Tommy Burns held on for three years. Finally Johnson caught up with him in Australia and reduced him to a state of interesting if not wholly recognizable debris.

You will note no mention is made of the duration of John L.'s reign. John L. was a bare knucker until he met Corbett and the bare knucklers aren't considered in this composition.

Nor is any mention made of the inconsequential Marvin Hart, upon whom Jeffries bestowed his title when he retired.

How to Paint Wickers
Wicker furniture should be washed in strong soda water (one tablespoonful of washing soda to a quart of water). Allow to dry, then paint any color with a standard enamel paint, being sure it does not settle in the openings of the wicker, as it will dry too thick if not brushed out.

CROWD OF FANS FLOOD ANN ARBOR

5 SPECIAL TRAINS, 12 COACHES
EACH, HEADED FOR FOOT-BALL GAME

Minneapolis, Nov. 20.—(UP)—

Gophers took to the ties today in a procession that will flood Ann Arbor tomorrow for the Big Ten championship Minnesota-Michigan football game. Ticketless, but undaunted by reports that the Wolverine stadium is sold out, demand for railroad accommodations continued to increase.

Five special trains of 12 coaches each were scheduled to leave at different hours through the day.

The team, coaches, trainers and miscellaneous aides de camp entrained last night with one of the greatest send-off demonstrations in the history of the university in their cars. After a gigantic bonfire on the campus, 5,000 students, led by the university band, marched upon the depot. Platforms were commandeered while all Minnesota, with its first possible Big Ten championship team in years, roared encouragement.

DEE!
An old Scotchman, David Gordan, was seriously ill, with scant hope of recovery. He had been wheeled into making a will, and his relatives were now gathered about his bedside watching him laboriously sign the document. He got as far as D-A-V-I—then fell exhausted.

"D, Uncle David," exhorted a nephew.

"Dee!" ejaculated the old Scot feebly, but with indignation. "Dee! I'll dee when I'm ready, ye avaricious wretch!"—Everybody's Magazine.

A Lamp that Burns 94% Air.

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94% per cent air and 6% common kerosene (coal oil).

The inventor J. E. Johnson, 609 W. Lake St., Chicago, Ill., is offering to send a lamp on 10 days' FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.

ROTARIANS VISIT THE CITY SCHOOLS

Eat Superb Dinner Cooked And Served by the Girls Skilled in Household Economics

JOHN F. WOODHEAD PRESIDES

George D. LaBar Spoke on Educational Matters, Assembly Room Visited And Talks Made

Brainerd Rotary club made its annual visit to the high school and partook of an excellent dinner cooked and served by high school girls skilled in household economics. President John F. Woodhead presided.

Two members joined Rotary, being S. R. Adair, introduced by his friend, A. G. Trommald; Rev. N. P. Olmstead, introduced by H. F. Michael. Walter F. Wieland, delivered a short address on the principles of Rotary.

Mrs. W. C. Cobb was given the floor and spoke of the Women Voters play to be given, "The Last Word," Monday evening in the high school.

George D. LaBar, member of the school for many years, was expected to speak on an educational topic and surprised his hearers by starting with a prologue based on "Vocal Music." He told of singing tenor and then first bass and was on the fair road to become a Caruso, when the teacher left. In educational matters, Mr. LaBar said the monthly payroll, while schools are operating, runs $11,500. The total expense per day is $800. There are 73 teachers and the superintendent. The board is creating a surplus, but not squandering it. All expense items are scanned with care and every dollar does its duty.

More room is needed, for absolute, by every possible inch of space is occupied. He described the effort made to build a combination auditorium and gymnasium about 160 feet long and 80 feet wide, 30 feet high, costing about $30,000, having a small stage and seating 800 to 900 people. The board also figured on building some time in the future a new boilerroom with three boilers.

Mr. LaBar, who has served 17 years on the school board, paid a tribute to Louis Hoffman, secretary, who has served continuously 23 years.

After the dinner the Rotarians repaired to the assembly room where Supt. W. C. Cobb presided. Short talks were given by Carl Zapffe, D. E. Whitney and Supt. Cobb. The Rotarian "motion" songs made a hit with the students. The Rotary program lasted to 2 o'clock and all the scholars voted it a most successful one.

HEDSTROM ORCHESTRA PLAYS

Invitations Sent Out Are Entirely New And Original Ones

More than 500 invitations have been issued for the U. C. T. dance to be given at Gardner's auditorium on Thanksgiving night, Thursday, November 26th.

This is the second of a series of dancing parties to be given by the U. C. T. during the coming season. The invitations for this dance are entirely new and original. They were designed by the entertainment committee and printed by the Daily Dispatch job printing department.

All U. C. T. dances have been and will be conducted in an orderly manner. These dances are not open to the public, and no one will be admitted without presenting their invitation at the door. Each person holding an invitation may bring a lady, and when accompanied by an extra lady, an additional charge is made for the extra lady. No lady without an escort will be admitted.

The music for this dance will be furnished by Hedstrom and his ginger gang of eight pieces, who are the originators of the rat-a-tat jazz music. No other orchestra in the northwest plays just like Hedstrom's ginger gang—that's why they're so much in demand.

The third dance of the series will be the U. C. T. annual ball to be given on Monday, December 28th, at Gardner's auditorium. Music for this dance will consist of an eleven piece orchestra and a special soloist.

They were an education to Phillips; he acknowledged that he had gravely misjudged them, and he began to suspect that they had taught him something of charity.

As for Laure, he knew her very well by now and she knew him— even better. This knowledge had come to them not without cost— wisdom is never cheap—but precisely what each of them had paid for was destined to pay for their better understanding of each other. They had not the slightest idea. One thing the girl by this time had made sure of, viz., when Pierce was his natural self he felt her appeal only faintly. On the other hand, the moment he was not his natural self, the moment his pitch was raised, he saw allurement in her, and at such times they met on common ground. She made the most of this fact.

Pierce longed for some one to whom he could confide his feeling of triumph, but nowhere did he recognize a face. Finally he strolled into one of the larger saloons and gambling-houses, and was contentedly eyeing the scene when he felt a gaze fixed upon him. He turned his head, opened his lips to speak, then stiffened in his tracks. He could not credit his senses, for there, lounging at ease against the bar, his face distorted into an evil grin, stood Joe McCaskey!

Pierce blinked; he found that his jaw had dropped in amazement. McCaskey enjoyed the sensation he had created; he leered at his former camp-mate, and in his expression was a hint of that same venom he had displayed when he had run the gauntlet at Sheep Camp after his flogging. He broke the spell of Pierce's amazement and proved himself to be indeed a reality by uttering a greeting.

Pierce was inclined to ignore the salutation, but curiosity got the better of him and he answered: "Well! This is a surprise. Do you own a pair of seven-league boots or—what?"

McCaskey bared his teeth further. In triumph he said: "Thought you'd lost me, didn't you? But I fooled you—fooled all of you. I jumped out to the States and caught the last boat for St. Michael, made connections there with the last up-river packet, and—here I am. I don't quit; I'm a finisher."

Pierce noted the emphasis with which Joe's last words were delivered, but as yet his curiosity was unsatisfied. He wondered if the fellow was sufficiently calloused to disregard his humiliating experience or if he proposed in some way to conceal it. Certainly he had not evaded recognition, nor had he made the slightest attempt to alter his appearance. From his bold insouciance it seemed evident that he was totally indifferent as to who recognized him. Either the man possessed moral courage of the extreme sort or else an unbelievable effrontery.

As for Pierce, he was deeply resentful of Joe's false accusation—the memory of that was ineradicable nevertheless, in view of the outcome of that cowardly attempt, he had no desire for further revenge. It seemed to him that the fellow had been sufficiently punished for his misdeed; in fact, he could have found it easy to feel sorry for him had it not been for the ill-concealed malice in Joe's present tone and attitude.

He was upon the point of answering Joe's indirect threat with a warning, when his attention was attracted to a short, thick-set, nervous man at his elbow. The latter had edged close and was staring curiously at him. He spoke now, saying: "So you're Phillips, eh?"

It was Joe who replied: "Sure, this is him."

There was no need of an introduction. Pierce recognized the stranger as another McCaskey, for the family likeness was stamped upon his features. During an awkward moment the two men eyed each other, and Joe McCaskey appeared to gloat at their glances clashed.

"This is Frank," the latter explained, with a malicious grin. "He and Jim was pals. And, say! Here's another guy you ought to meet." He laid a hand upon still a second stranger, a man leaning across the bar in conversation with a white-aproned attendant. "Count, here's that fellow I told you about."

The man addressed turned, exposing a handsome, smiling blond face ornamented with a well-worn mustache. "I beg pardon?" he exclaimed, vacuously.

"Meet Phillips. He can give you some dope on your wife," Joe chuckled. Phillips flushed; then he paled; his face hardened.

"Ah! To be sure," Count Courteau bowed, but he did not extend his hand. "Phillips! Yes, yes. I remember. You will understand that I'm distracted for news of Hilda. She is with you, perhaps?"

"Excellent! I shall surprise her," Pierce spoke dryly. "I'm afraid it won't be so much of a surprise as you think. She rather expects you." With a short nod and with what pretense of carelessness he could assume he moved on toward the rear of the building, whence came the sounds of music and the voice of a dance-hall caller.

For some time he looked on blindly at the whirling figures. Joe McCaskey here! And Count Courteau! What an astonishing coincidence! And yet there was nothing so remarkable about it; doubtless the same ship had brought them north, in which event they could not well have avoided a meeting. Pierce remembered Hilda's prophecy that her indigent husband would turn up, like a bad penny. His presence was agitating—for that matter, so was the presence of Joe McCaskey's brother Frank, as yet an unknown quantity. That he was an enemy was certain; together, he and Joe made an evil team, and Pierce was at a loss just how to meet them.

Later, when he strolled out of the saloon, he saw the three men still at the bar; their heads were together; they were talking earnestly. (To be continued)

STOCKS SCORE FURTHER RECOVERY

New York, Nov. 20.—(UP)—With the local bank rate unchanged at 3 1/2 per cent and the renewal rate on call stocks marked down to 4 1/2 per cent, stocks scored further recovery today. Aside from the more comfortable feeling regarding the credit situation, speculative sentiment was strengthened by President Coolidge's address here which more strikingly emphasized the administration's resolve to give business enterprise the greatest possible freedom from government interference.

United States Steel led a rally in the industrial list which attained considerable spirit in General Motors, Chrysler, Dupont, Mack Truck and other leaders recently under pressure.

Standard dividend rails made no further progress on the advance but exceptional activity at stiffening prices was in evidence on some lower priced issues, particularly Erie common, St. Paul and others.

The market closed lower.

FIND REMAINS OF PETER THE HERMIT?

Skeleton in Tomb at Amiens Believed to Be His.

Renovation of a part of the flooring of the cathedral of Amiens in the north of France revealed an extensive marble tomb, where a skeleton reposed which is thought to be none other than that of Peter the Hermit or Pierre of Amiens, the monk who went around in a mantle of camel hairs to preach the first Crusade. Pierre Van Panssen reports in the Atlanta Constitution. The venerable Peter's feet were still shod in a pair of fine Arabian slippers, though his phenomenal mantle, alas, had absolutely decayed. By his side stood a pair of solid gold vessels, no doubt part of the spoil that the Knights of the Cross had brought away with them from the Near East, like the golden Danubians still hanging from the ceiling of the great St. Bavon cathedral in Haarlem, Holland.

For every nation did its share to rob the unbelieving Turks and Saracens in those stirring days. The figure of Peter the Hermit has always been a romantic and adventurous one to this writer. Together with the rector of Amiens cathedral he once devoted a long period to research and examination of manuscripts in bad Latin which had bearing on the tempestuous career of the hermit. Standing in what is now the quiet little town of Amiens, one can picture the electric enthusiasm that must have reigned here more than a thousand years ago when a man dressed like John the Baptist went through the streets at the head of his medieval mixture of French and Latin: "Deus le Veult" (God wills it). Peter went to Rome and obtained from the pope the remarkable concession that every serf who would join a Crusade would be a freeman upon return, one of the greatest revolutionary acts of the Dark Ages.

His preaching, that sometimes "bordered on hysterical screeching," according to a contemporary scribe, still was so powerful a stimulant of the emotions that noblemen upon hearing him tore their cloaks in strips and fastened them in the form of a cross on their breasts. The Holy land was to be reconquered. The Turk, against whose depredations in Christendom provision was made in the litany of the Latin church, was to be exterminated and the holy places were to be wrested from the hands of the unspeakable Moslem. It was a simple monk who started this movement which sent tens of thousands of their death during the two following centuries and which at one time emptied the thrones of Europe, even as it was a simple monk who was the originator of another great revolution in European life in the Sixteenth century.

Soaks Right In and Limbers Up Stiff Joints

Pharmacists Call It "Joint-Ease" Because It's for Swollen, Sore, Painful, Creaky Joints Only.

It took a good many years to get together a combination of pain subduing and swelling reducing agents declared to be the one remedy that almost instantly penetrates through skin and flesh and starts right in to make swollen, inflamed, creaky, pain racked joints as good as new.

They call this new and wonderful preparation "Joint Ease" because the medical man who turned the trick, worked for years to perfect some low-priced remedy that would really benefit the millions of people who have one or more joints that need helpful attention.

So "Joint Ease" is prepared only for people who have a swollen, painful, creaky, distorted or stiff joint, whether it be in knee, elbow, shoulder, ankle, neck or finger and whether it is caused by rheumatism or something else.

Of course, it can't help but quickly put an end to such superficial ailments as lumbago, neuralgia, neuritis, aching muscles, stitch in the side, crick in the neck or sore feet because of its penetrating action, but what it is really recommended for is joint ailments of any nature whatever.

Ask for a tube of "Joint-Ease." You can use it several times in one evening for quick results, because it goes right through the skin with only a few seconds rubbing. It surely is a swift penetrator and when it gets under the skin, it starts right in to clean up all joint trouble.

Johnson's Pharmacy and Economy Drug Co. dispenses it daily for about 60 cents a tube, as do first class druggists everywhere.

They were an education to Phillips; he acknowledged that he had gravely misjudged them, and he began to suspect that they had taught him something of charity.

As for Laure, he knew her very well by now and she knew him— even better. This knowledge had come to them not without cost— wisdom is never cheap—but precisely what each of them had paid or was destined to pay for their better understanding of each other they had not the slightest idea. One thing the girl by this time had made sure, of, viz., when Pierce was his natural self he felt her appeal only faintly. On the other hand, the moment he was not his natural self, the moment his pitch was raised, he saw allurement in her, and at such times they met on common ground. She made the most of this fact.

Pierce longed for some one to whom he could confide his feeling of triumph, but nowhere did he recognize a face. Finally he strolled into one of the larger saloons and gambling-houses, and was contentedly eyeing the scene when he felt a gaze fixed upon him. He turned his head, opened his lips to speak, then stiffened in his tracks. He could not credit his senses, for there, lounging at ease against the bar, his face distorted into an evil grin, stood Joe McCaskey!

Pierce blinked; he found that his jaw had dropped in amazement, McCaskey enjoyed the sensation he had created; he leered at his former camp-mate, and in his expression was a hint of that same venom he had displayed when he had run the gauntlet at Sheep Camp after his flogging. He broke the spell of Pierce's amazement and proved himself to be indeed a reality by uttering a greeting.

Pierce was inclined to ignore the salutation, but curiosity got the better of him and he answered: "Well! This is a surprise. Do you own a pair of seven-league boots or—what?"

McCaskey bared his teeth further. In triumph he said: "Thought you'd lost me, didn't you? But I fooled you—fooled all of you. I jumped out to the States and caught the last boat for St. Michael, made connections there with the last up-river packet, and—here I am. I don't quit; I'm a finisher."

Pierce noted the emphasis with which Joe's last words were delivered, but as yet his curiosity was unsatisfied. He wondered if the fellow was sufficiently calloused to disregard his humiliating experience or if he proposed in some way to conceal it. Certainly he had not evaded recognition, nor had he made the slightest attempt to alter his appearance. From his bold insouciance it seemed evident that he was totally indifferent as to who recognized him. Either the man possessed moral courage of the extreme sort or else an unbelievable effrontery.

As for Pierce, he was deeply resentful of Joe's false accusation—the memory of that was ineradicable—nevertheless, in view of the outcome of that cowardly attempt, he had no desire for further revenge. It seemed to him that the fellow had been sufficiently punished for his misdeed; in fact, he could have found it easy to feel sorry for him had it not been for the ill-concealed malice in Joe's present tone and attitude.

He was upon the point of answering Joe's indirect threat with a warning, when his attention was attracted to a short, thick-set, nervous man at his elbow. The latter had edged close and was staring curiously at him. He spoke now, saying:

"So you're Phillips, eh?"

It was Joe who replied: "Sure, this is him."

There was no need of an introduction. Pierce recognized the stranger as another McCaskey, for the family likeness was stamped upon his features. During an awkward moment the two men eyed each other, and Joe McCaskey appeared to gloat as their glances clashed.

"This is Frank," the latter explained, with a malicious grin. "He and Jim was pals. And, say! Here's another guy you ought to meet."

He laid a hand upon still a second stranger, a man leaning across the bar in conversation with a white-aproned attendant. "Count, here's that fellow I told you about."

The man addressed turned, exposing a handsome, smiling blond face ornamented with a well-cared-for mustache. "I beg pardon?" he exclaimed, vacuously.

"Meet Phillips. He can give you some dope on your wife," Joe chuckled, Phillips flushed; then he paled; his face hardened.

"Ah! To be sure," Count Courteau bowed, but he did not extend his hand. "Phillips! Yes, yes, I remember. You will understand that I'm distracted for news of Hilda. She is with you, perhaps?"

"Excellent! I shall surprise her," Pierce spoke dryly. "I'm afraid it won't be so much of a surprise as you think. She rather expects you." With a short nod and with what pretense of carelessness he could assume he moved on toward the rear of the building, whence came the sounds of music and the voice of a dance-hall caller.

For some time he looked on blindly at the whirling figures. Joe McCaskey here! And Count Courteau! What an astonishing coincidence! And yet there was nothing so remarkable about it; doubtless the same ship had brought them north, in which event they could not well have avoided a meeting. Pierce remembered Hilda's prophecy that her indigent husband would turn up, like a bad penny. His presence was agitating—for that matter, so was the presence of Joe McCaskey's brother Frank, as yet an unknown quantity. That he was an enemy was certain; together, he and Joe made an evil team, and Pierce was at a loss just how to meet them.

Later, when he strolled out of the saloon, he saw the three men still at the bar; their heads were together; they were talking earnestly.

AMUSEMENTS

Reckless Daring in Carey Film

A lone rider, well in advance of a band of warring Indians, lashes his exhausted pony to further effort, across that barren, alkalali poisoned stretch of country at the foothills of the Rockies, known to every hardy pioneer as "The Bad Lands."

A worried look crosses his brow, as he turns again and notes the lesened distance between him and the pursuing band. Suddenly, topping the next rise he comes upon three stranded travellers, repairing their wagon.

Harry Carey, as Sergeant Patrick Angus O'Toole in the Hunt Stromberg supervised production, "The Bad Lands," playing this Saturday at the Lyceum Theatre, is this lone rider, pursued by Indians.

STOCKS SCORE FURTHER RECOVERY

New York, Nov. 20.—(UP)—With the local bank rate unchanged at 3 1/2 per cent and the renewal rate on call money marked down to 4 1/2 per cent stocks scored further recovery today. Aside from the more comfortable feeling regarding the credit situation speculative sentiment was strengthened by President Coolidge's address here which more strikingly emphasized the administration's resolve to give business enterprise the greatest possible freedom from government interference.

United States Steel led a rally in the industrial list which attained considerable spirit in General Motors, Chrysler, Dupont, Mack Truck and other leaders recently under pressure.

Standard dividend rails made no further progress on the advance but exceptional activity at stiffening prices was in evidence on some lower priced issues, particularly Erie common, St. Paul and others.

The market closed lower.

FIND REMAINS OF PETER THE HERMIT?

Skeleton in Tomb at Amiens Believed to Be His.

Renovation of a part of the flooring of the cathedral of Amiens in the north of France revealed an extensive marble tomb, where a skeleton reposed which is thought to be none other than that of Peter the Hermit or Pierre of Amiens, the monk who went around in a mantle of camel hairs to preach the first Crusade. Pierre Van Passen reports in the Atlanta Constitution. The venerable Peter's feet were still shod in a pair of fine Arabian slippers, though his phenomenal mantle, alas, had absolutely decayed. By his side stood a pair of solid gold vessels, no doubt part of the spoil that the Knights of the Cross had brought away with them from the Near East, like the golden Danubius still hanging from the ceiling of the great St. Bavon cathedral in Haarlem, Holland.

For every nation did its share to rob the unbelieving Turks and Saracens in those stirring days. The figure of Peter the Hermit has always been a romantic and adventurous one to this writer. Together with the rector of Amiens cathedral he once devoted a long period to research and examination of manuscripts in bad Latin which had bearing on the tempestuous career of the hermit. Standing in what is now the quiet little town of Amiens, one can picture the electric enthusiasm that must have reigned here more than a thousand years ago when a man dressed like John the Baptist went through the streets at the head of his medieval mixture of French and Latin: "Deus le Veult" (God wills it). Peter went to Rome and obtained from the pope the remarkable concession that every serf who would join a Crusade would be a freeman upon return, one of the greatest revolutionary acts of the Dark ages.

His preaching, that sometimes "bordered on hysterical screaming," according to a contemporary scrivener, still was so powerful a stimulant of the emotions that noblemen upon hearing him tore their cloaks in strips and fastened them in the form of a cross on their breasts. The Holy land was to be reconquered. The Turk, against whose depredations in Christendom provision was made in the litany of the Latin church, was to be exterminated and the holy places were to be wrested from the hands of the unspeakable Moslem. It was a simple monk who started this movement which sent tens of thousands of their death during the two following centuries and which at one time emptied the thrones of Europe, even as it was a simple monk who was the originator of another great revolution in European life in the Sixteenth century.

PRES. REED URGES THE NEED OF ORGANIZATION

HEAD OF STATE FARM BUREAU TALKS TO FARMERS

200 FARMERS AND BUSINESS MEN ATTEND COUNTY FARM BUREAU

FARMERS, SAYS MR. REED, MUST ORGANIZE TO MEET OTHER ORGANIZED GROUPS

The Crow Wing County Farm Bureau held a meeting today at 1:30 o'clock at the court house. There was a large attendance, there being about 200 farmers and business men present.

The principal speaker of the day was J. F. Reed, president of the Minnesota Farm Bureau. Mr. Reed lives on a farm in Lac Qui Parle county, in the western part of the state, so he speaks from actual experience.

Makes Forceful Address

His topic was "The Necessity and Value of Organization." He believes that agriculture in an unorganized way cannot attain a parity or an equality with other groups, business and professional, in American life, who are so closely and fully organized. There were two things he emphasized in his talk and they were: That with the groups having attained their present position through the enactment of law, either the same principle must be applied to agriculture, or the laws enacted for the benefit of other groups, industrial, financial, transportation and labor, must be taken away from them. To do that would disorganize the whole business fabric of America.

Mr. Reed said in part: "Farmers organize in order to meet other organized groups. It is very evident to everyone, except the newspapers, that the agricultural problem is not solved and won't be until agriculture by law obtains the same recognition that other groups have obtained by law. The condition of agriculture in the Middle West where agriculture is the principal business is in no better economic condition than it was last year, but the general trend of agriculture is towards the betterment of conditions. While there has been much impracticable advice given to agriculture by those whose position depended upon the success of agriculture, one of the most hopeful signs, it appears to me now is the sincere, intensive interest on the part of all business organizations to help agriculture to succeed."

The Position of the Railroads

"Railroads see that they cannot succeed in hauling freight from the farms to market and hauling empty cars back to the country, the thing they have been doing too much during the past five years. When the products of agriculture in the course of exchange will not bring the farmer the things he requires for his home and equipment and he is in a position to not buy these necessities, they will not be carried from the industrial centers where they are produced to the farms. At the present moment, the railroads in the western territory are asking for an increase in freight rates, basing their demand largely upon the assumption that agriculture can stand a larger freight rate on its products. The railroads in Minnesota and the northwest are entirely more prosperous than agriculture that they serve. This can be readily shown and will be at the hearing before the Interstate Commerce Commission beginning on November 30th which is to be held in Minneapolis."

"Financial interests see now, as they never have before, the necessity of a prosperous agriculture in order to succeed. During the past 30 days fifty banks were closed in South Dakota because of the present condition of agriculture. When transportation, finance, and industry sees, as they do today, probably better than ever before, that to attain prosperity, the basic industry of agriculture upon which they all depend must be prosperous, every possible effort is being made by these groups to see that agriculture, the largest group in American life, must be prosperous."

Essential for Farmers to Organize

"It is essential for farmers to organize—not to attain an advantage, but to meet all other groups in our industrial life that are now organized. There are many things that will tend to help the present agricultural situation, but the one thing that agriculture must have in order to cope with other groups is an equality before the law. Some means must be attained by law to handle the exportable surplus of American farms that it will not entirely govern the price of the product going into domestic consumption. Brazil has done this for their coffee growers, the British colonies have done this for their producers of rubber, and some way must be developed by

Court Finds Capt. Foley Not Guilty of Accusations

DO YOU KNOW?

That the Crow Wing County Farm Bureau has:

1. Helped maintain a County Agent for eleven years?
2. Has secured at cost for farmers in the county 130,000 pounds of Pyrotol, 40,000 pounds Sodastol and 70,000 pounds Pluric Acid, saving farmers from $15.00 to $20.00 per hundred pounds?
3. Has furnished speakers, programs, etc., for twenty-five Farm Bureau Units and Farmers' Clubs from time to time each year?
4. Has fostered a development program during the eleven years, including the building of two creameries, an egg marketing association, crop improvement, dairy sire program, increasing of alfalfa acreage from 40 acres to 4000 acres in three years, carried on experiments in soils, crops and with fertilizers? Has discovered and helped develop more than forty marl beds in the county? Has made poultry culling practical and understood by all farmers?
5. More than 200 hired men that are placed on farms each year? Over 3000 bulletins are distributed each year?
6. Plans of all the various Farm Buildings given to those wishing to build?
7. Has established a pickle station at Brainerd?
8. Has maintained an office for agricultural information. More than 300 farmers per month are using this office for their problems?

Each city of any pride or importance has a Chamber of Commerce with a secretary, and with dues ranging from $10 to $100 per member per year. Business men take a great deal of pride in belonging to this organization. This Chamber of Commerce is ever alert to work for the best interests of the city that they as individuals cannot take of themselves.

Every progressive and enterprising county now has a Farm Bureau. Every progressive farmer in the country should belong to this organization. Because of farmers living widely separated, it is more difficult to collect dues. It should be the pride and pleasure of everyone to say that he is a paid-up member in the Farm Bureau. The dues are $5.00 per year.

Make Crow Wing County Farm Bureau the biggest organization of the county.

GEORGE HURLEY IS REINDICTED

CHARGED WITH COMPLICITY IN MURDER OF BURTON STEVENS

St. Paul, Nov. 20.—(UP)—George Hurley, alias George Murphy, arrested in Chicago yesterday, on a John Doe indictment, was reindicted by the Ramsey county grand jury late yesterday for complicity in the murder of Burton Stevens for which Ben and Abe Gleeman are serving life sentences.

Meanwhile extradition proceedings were started. Carl H. Cummins, counsel for the Gleeman brothers whose case was reopened this fall by investigation of affidavits they filed purporting to expose a Twin Cities liquor syndicate and denying their guilt, is expected to ask another continuance Saturday. He maintains revelations of which Hurley is capable will clear the Gleemans.

PLEADS GUILTY TO WRITING BLACKMAIL NOTES

Beloit, Wis., Nov. 20.—(UP)—Charles H. Bates, township of Porter farmer, late yesterday pleaded guilty in municipal court in Janesville to a charge of writing blackmail letters. Judge Maxfield held up sentence pending an examination as to Bates' sanity.

The accused man admitted writing letters to Eugene Eager, Evansville banker, and Edward Nalan, Edgerton real estate broker, demanding $2,000 and $1,000 respectively. Failure to produce the money meant death to members of the family, the letters stated.

Bates, in his confession, declared he was forced to write the letters under duress.

NEW YORK GREETES PRESIDENT VERY CORDIALLY

COOLIDGE MAKES PLEA FOR CO-OPERATION OF LEGITIMATE BUSINESS AND GOVT.

ADDRESSES 1000 BUSINESS LEADERS AT N. Y. STATE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

New York, Nov. 20.—(UP)—President Coolidge's plea for co-operation between the legitimate business and government, each "sovereign in its own sphere" brought him the most enthusiastic reception New York has yet accorded him.

Speaking last night before more than 1,000 business leaders at the dinner of the New York State Chamber of Commerce at the Waldorf-Astoria, the president said that American finance, since the war, has marked a new epoch in international relations. He added that this country could perform no greater service to concord and peace than by entering the world court.

Mr. Coolidge's assertion that "true business" need have no fear of his administration and his references to the part American business had played in the post war reconstruction elicited frequent two and three minute bursts of applause.

The president warned his hearers that the "privilege seeking" type of business need expect no mercy at his hands. "Those who are engaged in true business," he said, "instead of regarding the government as their opponent and enemy ought to regard it as their vigilant supporter and friend."

The president outlined his opposition to over regulation of industry and said that the future of the United States now in the midst of its greatest prosperity, demands economical development by elimination of waste in materials and men and the realization that business had purged itself of "trusts."

The government, he added, desires those engaged in legitimate business to "rest in security; it wants any wrongs they may suffer to have a legal remedy, and it is all the time striving through administrative machinery to prevent in advance the infliction of injustice."

Even overshadowing internal progress, Mr. Coolidge said toward the close of his address, is progress in internationalism.

Urging America's entry into the world court in a call stronger than any he previously had uttered, the president said:

"With our already enormous and constantly increasing interests abroad there are constantly accumulating reasons why we should signify our adherence to the permanent court of international justice. Mindful of our determination to avoid all interference in the political affairs which do not concern us, of other nations, I can think of no more reassuring action than the declaration of America that it will whole heartedly join with others in support of the tribunal for the administration of international justice, which they have created."

"It would be the beginning of a new world spirit."

The president approved private foreign loans except where they were used for military purposes or by municipalities which did not practice needed economy.

In regard to the settlement of war debts, Mr. Coolidge said:

"It has been the belief of the government that no permanent stabilization of European finances and currency can be accomplished without a definite adjustment of these obligations. While we realize it is to our advantage to have these debts paid, it is also realized greatly for the advantage of our debtors to have them finally liquidated."

25 CARS BURNED IN GARAGE FIRE

SHOOTS AND KILLS FORMER WIFE AND THEN HIMSELF

Hawarden, Ia., Nov. 20.—(UP)—Insane with rage over the refusal of his former wife, Myron Little, 25, to agree to a reconciliation, Howard Craig, 30, Des Moines, shot and killed her and then killed himself here early today. The tragedy occurred at the home of the divorcee's mother, Mrs. Alma Little.

UNABLE TO SOLVE POISONED MILK CASE IN MADISON

Madison, Wis., Nov. 20.—(UP)—Solution of the third attempt in Madison in three years to poison whole families by depositing bottles of milk containing poison on porches seemed improbable today with the authorities running up against a blank wall in clues to the identity of the person who is thought to be a maniac, with periodic spells of insanity.

ANOTHER TRAGEDY AT SEA OR A FINE RESCUE OF VESSEL

NAVY RADIO RECEIVES BULLETINS AT WASHINGTON, D. C.

TANK STEAMER BRAZOS PICKS UP HAITIAN STEAMER VILLE DES CAYES

Washington, Nov. 20.—(UP)—News of what may prove to be another tragedy or another romantic rescue at sea was received by the navy radio here today.

A message from the tank steamer Brazos said that it had located the Haitian steamer Ville Des Cayes, said to have been carrying 200 laborers from Santiago De Cuba to island sugar fields and which has been reported as missing.

Last advices were that three members of the crew had been picked up by a British tramp steamer Tuesday and at that time it was reported that the vessel had been sunk in a hurricane.

There was nothing in today's message to indicate the fate of those aboard the Ville Des Cayes, whether they had been rescued when the vessel was located, or whether any were lost with the ship. Absence of information on the subject led navy officers to believe passengers and crew were safe.

WISCONSIN ROAD HOUSE IS RAIDED

BELIEVED TO BE OPENING OF OFFENSIVE COVERING EAST SECTION OF STATE

Kenosha, Wis., Nov. 20.—(UP)—Federal prohibition agents last night raided the Royal Palace Cafe, one of Wisconsin's finest road houses, near here, and placed Harry Gordon, proprietor, and Ben Klaffer, bartender, under arrest for alleged violation of the Volstead Act.

The raid is believed the opening of an offensive, which will cover the entire eastern section of Wisconsin, as it is known federal agents have been working quietly for several weeks gathering evidence for the proposed cleanup.

FLIER IN ROBBERY LIFE CUT SHORT

MILWAUKEE POLICE PUT QUIETUS ON 2 MEN TAKEN IN CUSTODY

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 20.—(UP)—After having been fairly successful in their first banditry attempt, two young men made the mistake of a second fling in a career of crime and were taken into custody. They are James Daniel Scott, 25, and Joseph Murray, 24.

Questioned by police they admitted several robberies, declaring they started on their crime career last Saturday night when they held up two local oil filling stations, escaping with $190 in cash. Last night they held up two Milwaukee motorists, a meat market and a pedestrian before they were arrested.

QUEEN MOTHER ALEXANDRA OF ENGLAND DIED

SUCCUMBS TO HEART DISEASE AT SANDRINGHAM ESTATE

BROAD MINDED AND BIG HEARTED, SHE HAD WEALTH OF SYMPATHY

London, Nov. 20.—(UP)—Queen Mother Alexandra of England, beloved of the entire empire, died today at her Sandringham estate in Norfolk, following several heart attacks yesterday and today. Death occurred at 5:25 P. M.

The queen was a beautiful woman and even the advancing years did not rob her face of the charm that captivated the nation upon her arrival. She was known as broad minded and big hearted, with a wealth of human sympathy and charm of manner.

The death of her eldest son, Albert Victor, Duke of Clarence, in 1892, was a great blow but she hid her grief in the performance of public duties. Her sixth and youngest child, Prince Alexander, died in 1871, a day after birth. Of her other children, George is now king of England, Princess Louise, (Princess Royal) married the late Duke of Fife, her daughter Maud is queen of Norway and Princess Victoria is unmarried.

Since King Edward's death, Queen Alexandra made her home at Marlborough House or at York Cottage on the Sandringham estate of which she was mistress during Edward's life time.

Of late years the queen mother's sight failed and her hearing was impaired.

Some Americans will recall the aged queen who in 1917 stood near the gates of Buckingham Palace, as King George, his wife, beside him, saluted the American troops on their way to the French front. And again a few years ago, she was at an American function, the army baseball game near London. She had always taken a keen interest in important public functions and was especially known for her charity. Her gracious manner and kindly ways endeared her to the mighty and lowly alike and her passing left a sense of loss from palace to cottage.

The widow of King Edward and mother of the present king, George V, had been in failing health for some time, but the suddenness of her passing after a critical illness lasting only since Thursday morning, shocked and grieved England which had loved and almost worshipped the "Sea King's Daughter From Over the Sea," ever since 1863, when she first set foot on English soil, coming from her Danish homeland.

Though the queen, lacking less than a dozen days of being 81, had been in failing health for some time, the sudden heart shocks of yesterday and today stunned the nation and turned it into deep mourning at her death.

King George and Queen Mary, stopping at Sandringham for some days were the first to go to her bedside, but the royal group was soon increased by the addition of the Princess Royal and Queen Maud of Norway, her daughter. The Duke of York proceeded from London today and later the Prince of Wales on a special train went on to Sandringham, after the Guildhall banquet at which London was to give him an official welcome home from South America had been cancelled.

The news spread throughout England and caused the deepest sorrow. Around her home town, Marlborough House, sympathetic throngs became so dense that special police had to be called.

The first word of the queen's illness yesterday showed that her condition was critical. Then this morning, fresh bulletins showed that it had grown even more critical and that she had lost strength.

This afternoon still a further turn for the worse came and oxygen was administered as the aged queen sank rapidly.

King George and Queen Mary were constantly at her bedside from 11 A. M.

Born nearly 81 years ago she was the daughter of the late King Christian IX of Denmark and from her Danish origin she gained Tennyson's impartial description, "The Sea King's Daughter From Over the Sea," to which he added in his poem of welcome:

"Norman and Saxon and Dane are we, but of all us Dane in our welcome to thee."

The death of the beloved queen mother stunned England, just as did the death of her husband 13 years ago.

The king will issue a proclamation prescribing the mourning ob-

COL. COOLIDGE MUCH IMPROVED

PRESIDENT'S FATHER SPENDS ANOTHER RESTFUL NIGHT

Plymouth, Vt., Nov. 20.—(UP)—Continued improvement in the condition of Colonel John C. Coolidge was evident this morning, according to his nurse, Mrs. May Johnson.

The president's father, who has been confined to his home with a recurrence of his heart ailment, spent another restful night and was still asleep when his nurse visited him at 7:45 A. M.

Colonel Coolidge's waking hour is 6 A. M. But last night he stayed up to hear his son's New York address over the radio and retired a little later than usual.

Washington, Nov. 20.—President and Mrs. Coolidge arrived back at the White House at 7:15 A. M. today from New York where the president last night addressed the New York State Chamber of Commerce.

CHARGES MADE BY MRS. LANSDOWNE ORDERED QUASHED

COURT HELD FORMER JUDGE ADVOCATE WAS NOT GUILTY

THAT HE DEALT WITH HER IN CONFORMITY WITH LEGAL OBLIGATIONS

By PAUL R. MALLON
Washington, Nov. 20.—The charges of Mrs. Margaret Ross Lansdowne that an effort had been made to twist her testimony were quashed today by the Shenandoah court of inquiry.

The court found its former judge advocate, Captain Paul Foley, not guilty of her accusations.

The court held that Foley was not guilty of any of the insinuations or charges and that he had dealt with Mrs. Lansdowne in conformity with obligations imposed upon him by law, as judge advocate of the court.

The verdict amounted to complete exoneration.

No improper conduct could be alleged against Foley from the evidence produced in this phase of the case before the court, the decision read by Admiral Hilary P. Jones, president of the board, asserted.

The decision was read at the opening of court today after an executive session, when points of law were argued and decision was finally drawn.

It had the unanimous approval of the four members of the court.

Although completely exonerated, Foley will not return to his former position as judge advocate. Major Henry Leonard, U. S. M. C., retired, who has acted since Foley's resignation, will continue.

2 BOBBED HAIR GIRLS HELD ON BURGLARY CHARGES

Minneapolis, Nov. 20.—(UP)—Two bobbed haired girls, one only 16 years old, were held by Minneapolis police today on burglary charges.

Mae McCormick, 20, was held to the grand jury. The younger girl was to be held until her parents arrive from Outlook, Mont., from whence she came a short time ago.

Both are said to have taken large quantities of clothing and jewelry from a rooming house.

FOREST FIRES UNDER CONTROL

Moose Lake, Minn., Nov. 20.—(UP)—Forest fires of serious nature which have been reported from Bruno and Askov near here are under control today, according to reports sent to Grover M. Conzet, state forester.

The fires started in peat bogs. Whipped up by strong winds they gained considerable headway yesterday and destroyed much standing timber and some second growth despite the light layer of snow covering the ground.

Scores of fire fighters are working to keep the flames in check and authorities expect to have complete control of the spread by tomorrow, it was said.

Minneapolis, Nov. 20.—(UP)—Application of the Minnesota-Western Railroad Company for exemption from a joint rate order of the state railroad and warehouse commission was denied today. The road formerly the Luce line is an electric service operating out of Minneapolis.

ASK POLICE TO DROP DRY RAIDS

CHICAGO COUNCIL RESOLUTION ASKS WHOLE ATTENTION GIVEN CRIME WAVE

Chicago, Nov. 20.—(UP)—A resolution that will instruct the chief of police to withdraw all members of the police force from assisting in prohibition enforcement and put them to running down criminals, was ordered drawn by the city council committee on judiciary by a 9 to 2 vote last night.

This was considered to be a distinct blow at Mayor Dever's dry law enforcement plan, which would employ the 5,000 members of the Chicago police force to assist in enforcing prohibition.

A bitter fight is expected to develop on the council floor if the committee approves the resolution ordered drafted.

GET TOGETHER TEA

Brainerd Musical Club to Have Annual Function at Chamber of Commerce Rooms

On Saturday afternoon, November 21st from 3:30 to 5 o'clock, the Brainerd Musical club will have the annual get together tea at the Chamber of Commerce rooms, in the Iron Exchange building.

The meeting will be a feast for both the body and soul—the tables are always gleaming in silver and white, with lovely flowers to delight the eye, while refreshments meet the needs of the inner man. It is a very pleasant way to spend part of the afternoon, or a brief respite from shopping, but more than that, it affords an opportunity to meet informally many ladies who are familiar because they have been seen at concerts, but whom there has been no way of meeting before. It is hoped that as many of the members as can will be out at some time during the afternoon, and that no one will be at all hesitant about making herself known.

The afternoon tea is in charge of a committee headed by Mrs. John Carlson, and the efficiency of the committee is proof enough that the tea will be all that one desires. Everybody should make a special effort to be there.

There will be several musical numbers in addition: Miss Rickard will sing, accompanied by Lorraine Morrison; Geraldine Kiebler will play the violin, and Mildred Skauge will give some selections on the piano.

You are invited to have coffee with us tomorrow, Saturday, Nov. 21, at the Brainerd Co-operative Merc. Co.

CUTTING THE CORNERS

USING this as the caption, "Cutting the Corners," C. A. Prosser, dean of Dunwoody Institute, gave this good piece of advice in the current issue of The Dunwoody News:

"The other day an accident took place in Minneapolis which resulted in the death of one person and the serious injury of another. When the case was taken into court for investigation, it appeared, to use the language of the jury, that the accident happened because the driver was one of the automobiles that cut the corners. The driver was not present in court. He could not be because he had passed out of the world. The other driver was there on crutches, fortunate, indeed, to have escaped by a narrow margin the same thing.

"It occurred to me how true the whole thing is of many other matters in life. Cutting the corners is, of course, a very bad thing for automobile drivers. Wiser than the driver, the law forbids cutting the corners with automobiles but many drivers do it anyhow. They not only disobey the law and make themselves liable to arrest; they expose themselves and everyone with them in the car to serious injury; they expose people in other cars who are the innocent victims of circumstances.

"Cutting corners, however, is not confined to driving automobiles or to the drivers of automobiles. People cut the corners in regard to many other things in life. A fellow comes to school. He is supposed to do certain work, meet certain rules and regulations, and conform to certain requirements. If he expects to amount to anything in the world, he will not cut the corners. Many fellows cut the corners. They are supposed to be at school at 8:30 in the morning. They are not there. They cut the corners and they hope to get by.

"They are supposed to meet certain standards in shop. They are expected to be neat and systematic and orderly in their work. They are supposed to apply themselves diligently to their tasks. They are supposed not to watch the clock. They are supposed to do an honest piece of work and meet approved standards of workmanship. But they cut the corners.

"In the classroom, they are expected to meet standards and requirements in mathematics, in science, in drawing, in English, economics and industrial history, and all that. Sometimes when they are interested in some subjects, they do them pretty well. They cut the corners on others. For example, they cut the corners of English, not realizing that they fail to do certain things in English which may keep them from promotion to a job they very much want.

"Do not cut the corners. If you do, remember that in the end you will come to grief just as certainly as the automobile driver who cuts the corners in reckless fashion forgetful of consequences."

PAID A FINE TRIBUTE

It was a splendid tribute George D. LaBar paid to Louis Hohman Tuesday at the Rotary luncheon held at the high school building. Mr. LaBar is in a position to speak authoritatively since he has served on the school board for seventeen years and Mr. Hohman has a record of twenty-two years service.

Mr. LaBar told of the benefits the city schools had received through the untiring service of Mr. Hohman who at times neglected his own business that the schools might have the best he could give to them.

The average member of elective bodies serves but a term or two or until he becomes familiar with the work and then hands the work over to another and he too gains his experience at the expense of the taxpayer; but Mr. Hohman has become familiar with the work and by his continuing and working has been of great value to the school system.

Mr. LaBar should be commended for bringing the splendid service of Mr. Hohman to the attention of the community. The average school board member or councilman generally hears mostly criticism. He hears few commendatory remarks even when he deserves them. If the records of the public servants were more carefully looked into and credit given for good work done, there would not be so many capable men who refuse to give service on these elective bodies.

We pay more for schools than for any other item on the tax budget. Our board members serve without remuneration. Individual citizens, parent-teachers' associations and clubs generally who are interested in civic affairs would find it pleasing and most profitable to watch the records of the members of the school board and then give due credit to those who by their work are rendering the community a real service.

WELCOME, FARMERS TO BRAINERD

THE foundation, the only real enduring kind of a foundation, of any community is agriculture. It stands to reason that without the farmer we'd all go hungry. If farming flourishes, then every other industry makes a good showing.

If farming "loses out," and we have had a taste of that, then not only Brainerd territory, but the state of Minnesota and the United States of America are sufferers.

President J. F. Reed, head of the Minnesota Farm Bureau, has well said that agriculture needs as much organization as any other industrial, financial or transportation or labor group. Agriculture will not solve its problems permanently until it gets as much recognition by law as the other groups named.

The farmer faces many vital questions, freight rates, marketing, crop production, the vagaries of the weather, roads, taxes, and what not. He must be a successful business man plus a tiller of the soil to meet the many problems facing him and demanding proper solution so that he may continue successfully to face natural and artificial elements and make not only a living from the soil, but the profit too that is due any lines of business.

We hope the deliberations of the Crow Wing County Farm Bureau will be profitable, that its membership will continue to grow and that the splendid record made in the past will be further enlarged. We also point with pride to the achievements of our county agent, E. G. Roth, who in his soil survey, treatment, etc., with natural elements at hand in our county, has gained nationwide recognition.

PRESIDENT REED URGES THE NEED OF ORGANIZATION

law that will do this for the American farmers.

Co-operative Marketing

"The marketing of farm products in a co-operative way must go forth. The spread between the price the farmer obtains for his products and that paid by the consumer is entirely too much. During the year 1924, the department of agriculture estimated the products from American farms to net the producers $10,000,000,000. For this, the consumers paid $30,000,000,000. For marketing and distributing farm products, for each dollar obtained by the producer, the consumer paid $3. The spread is too much and some means must be wrought out to correct this. It can be done through co-operative marketing. The producer must obtain more of the price paid for his product by the consumer. An outstanding example of this in Minnesota is the marketing of our butter. During the past year the producer of butterfat in Minnesota obtained for their product more than eight cents a pound—more than the producers of butterfat in any state that surrounds us. This did not add to the price of the product paid by the consumer. There are many other striking examples of the value of co-operation in the marketing of farm products. Minnesota leads all the states in the co-operative marketing of the products of the farm. This must be refined and extended until the time comes when the marketing of farm products will be a system carried on by the producers themselves. This means that any man or organization standing between the producer and the consumer that does not add an economic value to the product he handles must get into some other occupation.

"There are many important things besides the ones mentioned standing in the way of prosperity for agriculture. The time must come, and I believe it will, in the not distant future when ocean going vessels will come to our lake ports. Probably the most important thing touching transportation is the opening of the St. Lawrence river to ocean going ships. That this will be done, I have no doubt. The time will depend upon the insistence of the 40 million people tributary to the area, exert. When this improvement is made, it will make a saving in normal times of eight cents a bushel in freight rates on our wheat; other exportable farm products in like proportion. It will build up industrial centers in the interior where the products needed by the farmer and industry will be produced, making a market for the products of the farm. The transportation on the Great Lakes is now the cheapest transportation in the world. That the improvement of the 300 miles between Lake Ontario and Montreal must be done to meet the growing requirements of the great interior of America, not only on the products sent out, but on our necessities coming in, will be done when the people affected on both sides of the international boundary line demand it. Our farmers are studying their problems more intensive than ever before. Taxes, government, finance, transportation are all being given intensive thought.

The annual report of the secretary-treasurer and the annual report of County Agent E. G. Roth were then read. This was followed by election of officers for the coming year.

HRABIC JURY DEADLOCK AFTER TWENTY-NINE HOURS

FARMER ON TRIAL FOR MURDER. JURY IS DIS-MISSED

HRABIC CHARGED WITH SLAYING HIS HIRED MAN ON FARM

Faribault, Minn., Nov. 20.—(UP)—After deliberating 29 hours, the jury in the trial for murder of Harry Hrabic, farmer, living near here, was dismissed today. The foreman reported the vote deadlocked at 7 to 5.

Hrabic was charged with the murder in the first degree, for the slaying of Oliver Johnson, his hired man, early this fall.

Following an argument in which Johnson was ordered from the Hrabic farm, it was alleged, the farmer attacked him with a wrecking bar. Johnson stumbled into the road in front of the barn yard, where his prostrate body was unmercifully beaten.

Hrabic notified the sheriff immediately after the fight, Johnson died just as authorities arrived.

At his trial Hrabic testified that Johnson had refused to leave his farm as ordered, had threatened his life and was too familiar with members of his family. Mrs. Hrabic gave sensational testimony to substantiate the defense charges.

Another jury will be empaneled and a new trial held.

Wembley Comedy

One of the hundred thousand things to see at Wembley is an exhibit representing a grocer's shop in which cheese, oatmeal, bread, sugar, and so on, are lying about with no wrapping. Dummy rats, mice, and other small beasts are shown eating up the good things, and it is explained that this proves how important it is that food should be made up in properly packed parcels before being exposed for sale.

But there are real rats and mice at Wembley, and one night they discovered the unwrapped food and did what the dummy rats were pretending to do—ate it all up, so that in the morning there was not a scrap left. They drove home the moral, all right, but at rather too heavy a cost for repetition every day.—Family Herald.

Women's Rights in Siberia

After 18 years of obedient married life with a well-to-do peasant of Chernokorov Nikoy, Mrs. Doria Kuroreva, absorbed the Soviet doctrine of women's rights and began taking part in village politics. Her husband's beatings failed to discourage her and she was elected a member of the village Soviet. When she warned her husband that he must pay his taxes, he stabbed her with a knife. "The proletarian court will punish with great severity," adds the Siberian correspondent, who reported the incident. Kuroreva cannot be given more than ten years' imprisonment, as a single murder without robbery is not a capital crime in Russia.

Eik River, Minn., Nov. 20.—(UP)—Julius Landowski, charged with manslaughter for the death of Mrs. Mary Anderson, whom he ran down with an automobile last summer, pleaded guilty and was sentenced today to ten years in prison.

Landowski drove from the scene of the accident but lost control of his automobile in the hasty attempt to escape apprehension and was arrested a mile away where his car ditched. Mrs. Anderson was 83 years old.

Work on Traffic Problem

In an effort to solve the congested traffic problem, the Paris police are planning a laboratory street. This novel idea was suggested by M. Roeland, a city councillor, and M. Marain, prefect of police, is heartily in accord with the experiment. The laboratory street will provide all sorts of tests for motor traffic to determine the cause of accidents. Various surface materials and safety devices will be tested, as well as mistakes in driving and the most efficient control of traffic.

Vast Supply of Potash

A thousand years' supply of potash for the American farmer, making us independent of supplies from Chile and other foreign countries, is possible as a result of a discovery of a new process for making potassium sulphate from greensand. British Thrift

The latest figures on savings show that two-thirds of the people of Great Britain maintain savings accounts in some form. More than 15,000,000 people have amassed $3,766,200,000 in savings and savings certificates. Savings bank deposits have increased 100 per cent in less than a generation. Despite war losses, since 1914 the national capital of Great Britain is now estimated in excess of $92,000,000,000. Figures from co-operative societies show a membership of more than 33,000,000. One writer on the subject says that "British thrift explains British policy, tolerance and love of order."—Thrift Magazine.

Uncle Sam Breeds Bugs

In a strange nursery on the banks of the Potomac the United States government keeps a host of fleas, mosquitoes, mites and flies. When fully grown, they serve to test poisons that are sold throughout the country for extermination of insects, says Popular Science Monthly. Among the most valued assistants on the bug farm are four dogs, two cats and 125 chickens, which produce bumper crops of fleas and mites for the tests.

POCKETS OF NATURAL GAS DISCOVERED UNDER ICE COATING

Turtle Lake, Wis., Nov. 20.—(UP)—Reports that pockets of natural gas have been discovered under ice coating a number of small lakes four miles northwest of here stirred the community with oil-gas excitement today.

The discovery is reported to have been made by hunters who punctured ice and found the escaping gas burned with a steady blue flame.

City officials told the United Press the phenomenon had been witnessed by a large number of townspeople. None, however, had visited the reported gas fields personally.

RED GRANGE MAY LEAD A TEAM OF STARS

SAID BEING ORGANIZED BY TIM CALLAHAN

GAME TO BE PLAYED AT CORAL GABLES, FLA., ON CHRISTMAS DAY

FORMER ELI STAR SO DELEGATED BY REAL ESTATE INTERESTS

By HENRY L. FARRELL (United Press Staff Correspondent)
New York, Nov. 20.—Red Grange will lead a team of all star players against a team that is being organized by Tim Callahan, captain and all-American guard of the 1920 Yale team, in a game to be played at Coral Gables, Fla., on Christmas day, Callahan announced today at the Yale club here.

The former Eli star said he had been delegated by real estate interests with which he has been associated to organize a team to play in six big games after Christmas.

He declared he knew Grange was going to play in Florida and that his team would include Earl Britton, star fullback of the Illinois team, several members of the Chicago Bears and other star players from the western conference.

Callahan, who was one of the greatest linemen of all time, refused to mention any of the players he was seeking for his team, but the belief was justified from the conversation that some of the stars are playing tomorrow in the east. He explained that he had become interested because weather conditions will not permit games in Florida until after Christmas.

He said that two other big teams were being organized, one to be known as the Princeton Collegians, the other as the Notre Dame Collegians. The Notre Dame team, he said, will consist of the famous four horsemen, Stuhldreher, Crowley, Layden and Miller, and Eddie Anderson, Kiley, Bach and other former stars from South Bend.

The Princeton team will include several of the assistant coaches, Wittmer, Keck and others, and some Princeton Varsity players.

GRANGE SAYS HE SIGNED NO CONTRACT

Chicago, Nov. 20.—Harold "Red" Grange and his University of Illinois football team are speeding to Columbus for their game with Ohio State Saturday, giving the famous football star a few hours' respite from the pulling and hauling he had been subjected to because of rumors that he has signed to play professional football after the game with Ohio.

Grange's last words before the team left Champaign last night reiterated his many denials that he had already signed a contract.

"I have not signed anything," he said. "I have not turned professional and I won't do a thing about this matter until after Saturday's game."

From various sources comes the information that Red has his plans all made for his debut in the professional world. The tentative program calls for him to play with the professional Chicago Bears here on Thanksgiving day, then a tour of Florida and later on the movies. According to the stories Grange will play with Syd Chaplin in a screen version of "The College Widow."

GRAND FINALE IN THE FOOTBALL GAMES SATURDAY

FIRST PLACE AT STAKE IN MINNESOTA-MICHIGAN CLASH

VICTORY FOR GOPHERS WILL MAKE THEM UNDISPUTED CHAMPIONS

By Edward C. DERR (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Chicago, Nov. 20.—The grand finale of the 1925 football season in the Big Ten conference comes tomorrow in four games, one of which will determine the championship.

First place will be at stake when Minnesota and Michigan clash at Ann Arbor. A victory for the Gophers will make them undisputed champions with two wins and a tie game comprising their season's record.

If Michigan wins, the Gophers will be tumbled far down the list because of their slim schedule and Michigan will be rated the most powerful team in the conference. The Wolverines' record would then be five victories and one defeat and second place honors would go to Northwestern with three wins and one defeat. Because Northwestern gave Michigan its only defeat so far, however, Wildcat enthusiasts will claim they have an equal right to the title with Michigan.

The Illinois-Ohio State game at Columbus brings together two ancient rivals but since both teams have been eliminated from titular consideration the chief interest in this battle will center around Red Grange, who finishes his collegiate career and has promised to make public immediately after the game his plans for the future.

Grange has been so busy denying rumors that he had turned pro that

Illini supporters fear he will not be in the best of condition and may not end his career in a blaze of glory.

Chicago and Wisconsin with identical records to date, meet at Stagg Field. There is no love between these two universities and the game is always bitterly contested. They played to a tie last year but the Badgers are favored to win tomorrow, partly because they seem to have a better team and partly because the Maroon strength has been cut by the ineligibility of four regulars.

Indiana and Purdue will fight it out for cellar position at Bloomington. Each team has three defeats and no victory to boast about.

The other conference schools have finished their schedules and will meet strong non-conference teams, Northwestern clashing with Notre Dame at South Bend and Iowa playing Southern California at Los Angeles.

DEMPSEY CAN SET RECORD NEXT YEAR

He Will Have Held Championship 7 Years When He Fights Again.

If Jack Dempsey ever fights again it will be in the summer of 1926. By that time he will have held the heavyweight championship for seven years.

No heavyweight champion in modern times has held the title longer than six years and some odd months.

The present record belongs to Jack Johnson. Johnson beat Jim Jeffries in 1910 and held the title until Jess Willard whipped him six years, three months and a few days later.

Dempsey won the title by a knockout from Jess Willard July 4, 1919. Already he has held the title over six years. Nothing can keep him from ultimately passing Johnson's record. But the mark will not be accepted by ring historians unless he fulfills his promise to battle next summer.

On the contrary, his retirement will date back to the night on which he knocked out Luis Firpo, the prize cow of the Argentine, two seasons ago. Dempsey's record, then, as a titleholder, would be four years and a few months.

Unquestionably Jeffries would have been far out in front as an enduring champion if he had not retired in 1905 after looking over the field and concluding no other logical opponent existed. At the time the California roller-juggler had been on top for six full years.

When Jeff did come back in 1910, lured by the pot of gold dangled enticingly in front of his renegeous back by Tex Rickard, it was as a challenger, not as champion.

Corbett won the title in 1892 and held it a little less than five years. Bob Fitzsimmons succeeded Corbett and was champion for a trifle more than two years.

Tommy Burns held on for three years. Finally Johnson caught up with him in Australia and reduced him to a state of interesting if not wholly recognizable debris.

You will note no mention is made of the duration of John L.'s reign. John L. was a bare knucker until he met Corbett and the bare knucklers aren't considered in this composition.

Nor is any mention made of the inconsequential Marvin Hart, upon whom Jeffries bestowed his title when he retired.

How to Paint Wickers

Wicker furniture should be washed in strong soda water (one tablespoonful of washing soda to a quart of water). Allow to dry, then paint any color with a standard enamel paint, being sure it does not settle in the openings of the wicker, as it will dry too thick if not brushed out.

CROWD OF FANS FLOOD ANN ARBOR

5 SPECIAL TRAINS, 12 COACHES EACH, HEADED FOR FOOTBALL GAME

Minneapolis, Nov. 20.—(UP)—Gophers took to the ties today in a procession that will flood Ann Arbor tomorrow for the Big Ten championship Minnesota-Michigan football game. Ticketless, but undaunted by reports that the Wolverine stadium is sold out, demand for railroad accommodations continued to increase. Five special trains of 12 coaches each were scheduled to leave at different hours through the day.

The team, coaches, trainers and miscellaneous aides de camp entrained last night with one of the greatest send-off demonstrations in the history of the university in their cars. After a gigantic bonfire on the campus, 5,000 students, led by the university band, marched upon the depot. Platforms were commandeered while all Minnesota, with its first possible Big Ten championship team in years, roared encouragement.

DEE!

An old Scotchman, David Gordon, was seriously ill, with scant hope of recovery. He had been wheeled into making a will, and his relatives were now gathered about his bedside watching him laboriously sign the document. He got as far as D-A-V-I—then fell exhausted.

"D. Uncle David," exhorted a nephew.

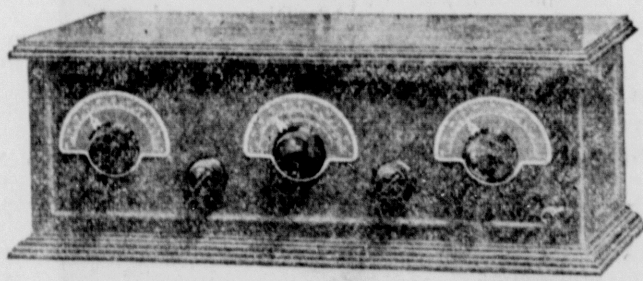

"Dee!" ejaculated the old Scot feebly, but with indignation. "Dee! I'll dee when I'm ready, ye avaricious wretch!"—Everybody's Magazine.

At the regular meeting of the Brainerd Ladies' band last Tuesday night, November 17th, Attorney D. H. Fullerton spoke before the band, giving a very interesting and instructive talk in which he compared the likeness of spirit in a football team and in band or any organization, showing the members that a co-operative and sympathetic attitude is the necessary in a band organization as it is in a football team.

The band members are making extensive preparations now to hold a novelty article sale the week of December 15th at the C. W. Milkes store on the corner of 6th and Laurel Mr. Milkes offering a corner window to the Ladies' band in which to display articles for sale if it so desired. ROTARIANS VISIT THE CITY SCHOOLS

Eat Superb Dinner Cooked And Served by the Girls Skilled in Household Economics

JOHN F. WOODHEAD PRESIDES

George D. LaBar Spoke on Educational Matters, Assembly Room Visited And Talks Made

Brainerd Rotary club made its annual visit to the high school and partook of an excellent dinner cooked and served by high school girls skilled in household economics. President John F. Woodhead presided.

Two members joined Rotary, being S. R. Adair, introduced by his friend, A. G. Trommald; Rev. N. P. Olmstead, introduced by H. F. Michael, Walter F. Wieland, delivered a short address on the principles of Rotary.

Mrs. W. C. Cobb was given the floor and spoke of the Women Voters play to be given, "The Last Word," Monday evening in the high school. George D. LaBar, member of the school for many years, was expected to speak on an educational topic and surprised his hearers by starting with a prologue based on "Vocal Music." He told of singing tenor and then first bass and was on the fair road to become a Caruso, when the teacher left. In educational matters, Mr. LaBar said the monthly payroll, while schools are operating, runs $11,500. The total expense per day is $800. There are 73 teachers and the superintendent. The board is creating a surplus, but not squandering it. All expense items are scanned with care and every dollar does its duty.

More room is needed, for absolutely every possible inch of space is occupied. He described the effort made to build a combination auditorium and gymnasium about 160 feet long and 80 feet wide, 30 feet high, costing about $30,000, having a small stage and seating 500 to 600 people. The board also figured on building some time in the future a new boiler room with three boilers.

Mr. LaBar, who has served 17 years on the school board, paid a tribute to Louis Hohman, secretary, who has served continuously 23 years.

After the dinner the Rotarians repaired to the assembly room where Supt. W. C. Cobb presided. Short talks were given by Carl Zapffe, D. E. Whitney and Supt. Cobb. The Rotarian "motion" songs made a hit with the students. The Rotary program lasted to 2 o'clock and all the scholars voted it a most successful one.

U. C. T. DANCE ON THANKSGIVING

500 Invitations Sent Out by United Commercial Travelers Council

HEDSTROM ORCHESTRA PLAYS

Invitations Sent Out Are Entirely New And Original Ones

More than 500 invitations have been issued for the U. C. T. dance to be given at Gardner's auditorium on Thanksgiving night, Thursday, November 26th.

This is the second of a series of dancing parties to be given by the U. C. T. during the coming season. The invitations for this dance are entirely new and original. They were designed by the entertainment committee and printed by the Daily Dispatch job printing department.

All U. C. T. dances have been and will be conducted in an orderly manner. These dances are not open to the public, and no one will be admitted without presenting their invitation at the door. Each person holding an invitation may bring a lady, and when accompanied by an extra lady, an additional charge is made for the extra lady. No lady without an escort will be admitted.

The music for this dance will be furnished by Hedstrom and his ginger gang of eight pieces, who are the originators of the rat-a-tat jazz music. No other orchestra in the northwest plays just like Hedstrom's ginger gang—that's why they're so much in demand.

The third dance of the series will be the U. C. T. annual ball to be given on Monday, December 28th, at Gardner's auditorium. Music for this dance will consist of an eleven piece orchestra and a special soloist.

The Hobart M. Cable Piano measures full up to the standard set up above, no matter how critically you may examine it or "try it out"—as more than one thousand satisfied owners in and around Brainerd will tell you.

Come in, and let us show it to you. Hear it for yourself. A moderate down payment and comfortable weekly, monthly, or quarterly terms of payment will be arranged to make the owning easy. If you have an old piano, we'll accept it in part payment at a fair valuation.

They were an education to Phillips; he acknowledged that he had gravely misjudged them, and he began to suspect that they had taught him something of charity.

As for Laure, he knew her very well by now and she knew him— even better. This knowledge had come to them not without cost— wisdom is never cheap—but precisely what each had paid or was destined to pay for their better understanding of each other they had not the slightest idea. One thing the girl by this time had made sure of, viz., when Pierce was his natural self he felt her appeal only faintly. On the other hand, the moment he was not his natural self, the moment his pitch was raised, he saw allurement in her, and at such times they met on common ground. She made the most of this fact.

Pierce longed for some one to whom he could confide his feeling of triumph, but nowhere did he recognize a face. Finally he strolled into one of the larger saloons and gambling-houses, and was contentedly eyeing the scene when he felt a gaze fixed upon him. He turned his head, opened his lips to speak, then stifled in his tracks. He could not credit his senses, for there, lounging at ease against the bar, his face distorted into an evil grin, stood Joe McCaskey!

Pierce blinked; he found that his jaw had dropped in amazement. McCaskey enjoyed the sensation he had created; he leered at his former camp-mate, and in his expression was a hint of that same venom he had displayed when he had run the gauntlet at Sheep Camp after his flogging. He broke the spell of Pierce's amazement and proved himself to be indeed a reality by uttering a greeting.

Pierce was inclined to ignore the salutation, but curiosity got the better of him and he answered:

"Well! This is a surprise. Do you own a pair of seven-league boots or—what?"

McCaskey bared his teeth further. In triumph he said: "Thought you'd lost me, didn't you? But I fooled you—fooled all of you. I jumped out to the States and caught the last boat for St. Michael, made connections there with the last up-river packet, and—here I am. I don't quit; I'm a finisher."

Pierce noted the emphasis with which Joe's last words were delivered, but as yet his curiosity was unsatisfied. He wondered if the fellow was sufficiently calloused to disregard his humiliating experience or if he proposed in some way to conceal it. Certainly he had not evaded recognition, nor had he made the slightest attempt to alter his appearance. From his bold insouciance it seemed evident that he was totally indifferent as to who recognized him. Either the man possessed moral courage of the extreme sort or else an unbelievable effrontery.

As for Pierce, he was deeply resentful of Joe's false accusation—the memory of that was ineradicable—nevertheless, in view of the outcome of that cowardly attempt, he had no desire for further revenge. It seemed to him that the fellow had been sufficiently punished for his misdeed; in fact, he could have found it easy to feel sorry for him had it not been for the ill-concealed malice in Joe's present tone and attitude.

He was upon the point of answering Joe's indirect threat with a warning, when his attention was attracted to a short, thick-set, nervous man at his elbow. The latter had edged close and was staring curiously at him. He spoke now, saying:

"So you're Phillips, eh?"

It was Joe who replied: "Sure. This is him."

There was no need of an introduction. Pierce recognized the stranger as another McCaskey, for the family likeness was stamped upon his features. During an awkward moment the two men eyed each other, and Joe McCaskey appeared to gloat at their glances clashed.

"This is Frank," the latter explained, with a malicious grin. "He and Jim was pals. And, say! Here's another guy you ought to meet." He laid a hand upon still a second stranger, a man leaning across the bar in conversation with a white-aproned attendant. "Count, here's that fellow I told you about."

The man addressed turned, exposing a handsome, smiling blond face ornamented with a well-worn mustache. "I beg pardon?" he exclaimed, vacuously.

"Meet Phillips. He can give you some dope on your wife." Joe chuckled. Phillips flushed; then he paled; his face hardened.

"Ah! To be sure," Count Courteau bowed, but he did not extend his hand. "Phillips! Yes, yes. I remember. You will understand that I'm distracted for news of Hilda. She is with you, perhaps?"

"Excellent! I shall surprise her," Pierce spoke dryly. "I'm afraid it won't be so much of a surprise as you think. She rather expects you." With a short nod and with what pretense of carelessness he could assume he moved on toward the rear of the building, whence came the sounds of music and the voice of a dance-hall caller.

For some time he looked on blindly at the whirling figures. Joe McCaskey here! And Count Courteau! What an astonishing coincidence! And yet there was nothing so remarkable about it; doubtless the same ship had brought them north, in which event they could not well have avoided a meeting. Pierce remembered Hilda's prophecy that her indigent husband would turn up, like a bad penny. His presence was agitating—for that matter, so was the presence of Joe McCaskey's brother Frank, as yet an unknown quantity. That he was an enemy was certain; together, he and Joe made an evil team, and Pierce was at a loss just how to meet them.

Later, when he strolled out of the saloon, he saw the three men still at the bar; their heads were together; they were talking earnestly.

STOCKS CLOSE FURTHER RECOVERY

New York, Nov. 20.—(UP)—With the local bank rate unchanged at 3½ per cent and the renewal rate on call money marked down to 4½ per cent stocks scored further recovery today. Aside from the more comfortable feeling regarding the credit situation speculative sentiment was strengthened by President Coolidge's address here which more strikingly emphasized the administration's resolve to give business enterprise the greatest possible freedom from government interference.

United States Steel led a rally in the industrial list which attained considerable spirit in General Motors, Chrysler, Dupont, Mack Truck and other leaders recently under pressure.

Standard dividend rails made no further progress on the advance but exceptional activity at stiffening prices was in evidence on some lower priced issues, particularly Erie common, St. Paul and others.

The market closed lower.

FIND REMAINS OF PETER THE HERMIT?

Skeleton in Tomb at Amiens Believed to Be His.

Renovation of a part of the flooring of the cathedral of Amiens in the north of France revealed an extensive marble tomb, where a skeleton reposed which is thought to be none other than that of Peter the Hermit or Pierre of Amiens, the monk who went around in a mantle of camel hairs to preach the first Crusade. Pierre Van Paussen reports in the Atlanta Constitution. The venerable Peter's feet were still shod in a pair of fine Arabian slippers, though his phenomenal mantle, alas, had absolutely decayed. By his side stood a pair of solid gold vessels, no doubt part of the spoil that the Knights of the Cross had brought away with them from the Near East, like the golden Damians still hanging from the ceiling of the great St. Bavon cathedral in Haarlem, Holland.

For every nation did its share to rob the unbelieving Turks and Saracens in those stirring days. The figure of Peter the Hermit has always been a romantic and adventurous one to this writer. Together with the rector of Amiens cathedral he once devoted a long period to research and examination of manuscripts in bad Latin which had bearing on the tempestuous career of the hermit. Standing in what is now the quiet little town of Amiens, one can picture the electric enthusiasm that must have reigned here more than a thousand years ago when a man dressed like John the Baptist went through the streets at the head of his medieval mixture of French and Latin: "Deus le Veint" (God wills it). Peter went to Rome and obtained from the pope the remarkable concession that every serf who would join a Crusade would be a freeman upon return, one of the greatest revolutionary acts of the Dark ages.

His preaching, that sometimes "bordered on hysterical screeching," according to a contemporary scrivener, still was so powerful a stimulant of the emotions that noblemen upon hearing him tore their cloaks in strips and fastened them in the form of a cross on their breasts. The Holy land was to be reconquered. The Turk, against whose depredations in Christendom provision was made in the litany of the Latin church, was to be exterminated and the holy places were to be wrested from the hands of the unspeakable Moslem. It was a simple monk who started this movement which sent tens of thousands of their death during the two following centuries and which at one time emptied the thrones of Europe, even as it was a simple monk who was the originator of another great revolution in European life in the Sixteenth century.

Law Not Fully Accepted

The law of averages aims to demonstrate that while the trend of human affairs cannot be forecast with certainty, it can be worked out to a considerable extent arithmetically by arriving at averages based on statistics relating to the event. This law is not universally accepted by economists.

Soaks Right In and Limbers Up Stiff Joints

Pharmacists Call It "Joint-Ease" Because It's for Swollen, Sore, Painful, Creaky Joints Only.

It took a good many years to get together a combination of pain subduing and swelling reducing agents declared to be the one remedy that almost instantly penetrates through skin and flesh and starts right in to make swollen, inflamed, creaky, pain racked joints as good as new.

They call it this new and wonderful preparation "Joint Ease" because the medical man who turned the trick, worked for years to perfect some low-priced remedy that would really benefit the millions of people who have one or more joints that need helpful attention.

So "Joint Ease" is prepared only for people who have a swollen, painful, creaky, distorted or stiff joint, whether it be in knee, elbow, shoulder, ankle, neck or finger and whether it is caused by rheumatism or something else.

Of course, it can't help but quickly put an end to such superficial ailments as lumbago, neuralgia, neuritis, aching muscles, stitch in the side, crick in the neck or sore feet because of its penetrating action, but what it is really recommended for is joint ailments of any nature whatever.

Ask for a tube of "Joint-Ease." You can use it several times in one evening for quick results, because it goes right through the skin with only a few seconds rubbing. It surely is a swift penetrator and when it gets under the skin, it starts right in to clean up all joint trouble.

Johnson's Pharmacy and Economy Drug Co. dispenses it daily for about 60 cents a tube, as do first class druggists everywhere.

AMUSEMENTS

Reckless Daring in Carey Film

A lone rider, well in advance of a band of warring Indians, lashes his exhausted pony to further effort, across that barren, alkalai poisoned stretch of country at the foothills of the Rockies, known to every hardy pioneer as "The Bad Lands."

A worried look crosses his brow, as he turns again and notes the lessened distance between him and the pursuing band. Suddenly, topping the next rise he comes upon three stranded travellers, repairing their wagon.

Harry Carey, as Sergeant Patrick Angus O'Toole in the Hunt Stromberg supervised production, "The Bad Lands," playing this Saturday at the Lyceum Theatre, is this lone rider, pursued by Indians.
